To The Most Honorable, Governor Nikki Haley:

Madam, I so wanted to contact you last night immediately after your Republican Address. But I fear I have given so much for my country, for I so love her, that I cannot always do what I want when I want to.

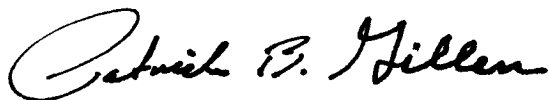

I have seldom been so stirred in my life of 65 years, so proud to be an American, as I was hearing your words. I exclaimed to my wife, "She should be our President!" Oh, if only, she would be our vice-president eight years and then president another eight.

It was the best written, best delivered speech I have heard to include those of Cicero, those of FDR, those of Abraham Lincoln and those of Ronald Reagan.

Madam, I salute you. God bless you, for being you, and for blowing the fresh breath of liberty over the nearly cold ashes of our country. To breathing on these embers in my heart, dimmed by the corruption and lies and destruction of our country by too many politicians, blowing them into a small flame I hope continues to grow.

Huzzah, as we would cry in 1776, to Governor Haley of South Carolina!

Your most humble servant,
