Interview with Denise James, Mount Pleasant Magazine: May/ June Issue "Lowcountry Women in Business"

Questions from Denise:

1. Describe who, or what, first piqued your ambition as a child and/or young girl. What experiences shaped this ambition? Did a parent, relative or close friend set an example of what might fulfill you?
2. Did you face discouragement during your younger years as you figured out what your life path might be? For example, did anyone tell you to just "get married and have children" or disparage your ideas in any way? How did you overcome any discouragement or setbacks?
3. What is your education and internship background? What early "gigs" helped you?
4. What was your first experience in public service and what impression did it leave?
5. How did you feel when you were elected as governor of South Carolina? What were your ambitions?
6. What is your next move?
7. What advice can you provide to our readers who are contemplating a foray into public service or simply pursuing a personal dream?
