Comments:
Would it be possible to have something on the public website that applicants that are holding beginner permits could check to see when they are eligible to take the road test(they have waited their 180 days) Applicants come to the field office and have calculated the days incorrectly and parents are arguing that they have counted so if we had a way for them to enter the issue date and let the website compute the day they are eligible, it may save time and an argument. Thanks!
