BACKGROUND:

WHEREAS, dyslexia is a language-based learning disability which often limits a student's ability to succeed in a traditional classroom setting; and

WHEREAS, neurological in origin, dyslexia affects the way the brain processes information and is a leading cause of difficulties with reading, writing, and spelling; and

WHEREAS, special education opportunities, including highly-trained teachers, multi-sensory learning programs, and individualized instruction, are vital to a dyslexic person's future success; and

WHEREAS, early identification, alternative instruction, and extra support from teachers, families, and friends enable dyslexic students to achieve in school and excel in later employment.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, Nikki R. Haley, Governor of the Great State of South Carolina, do hereby proclaim October 2011 as throughout the state and encourage all South Carolinians to recognize the benefits of early identification and effective teaching to the quality of life of dyslexic students.

BACKGROUND ON LEARNING ALLY:

Learning Ally (formerly RFB&D) has a successful record of partnering with federal, state and local governments to promote academic and personal success for many individuals. Our collaboration with several state departments of education is critical to Learning Ally's ability to serve hundreds of thousands of students who need accessible educational materials to succeed. This ongoing support helps to underwrite our services and develop the new capacity needed to serve even more individuals.

BACKGROUND:

The National Association of Insurance & Financial Advisors

NAIFA-South Carolina is a major force shaping the changing environment of life and health insurance and related financial services in South Carolina. Founded in 1935 and headquartered in Columbia, South Carolina, NAIFA-SC is a federation of 18 local associations representing over 1100 individuals engaged in insurance and financial services.

Since its inception NAIFA-SC has functioned as a non-profit organization maintaining close relations with the legislative and business communities to enhance the business atmosphere, improve professional skills and promote an ethical environment for the insurance industry.

NAIFA-SC member agents do much more than just sell insurance. They provide financial counseling and help individuals prepare for retirement and plan estates. They design employee benefits and compensation packages and provide employers with group health, pensions, and 401(k) plans. Our members work hard to see that their clients get the best insurance programs to fit their needs.

Our member agents occupy the unique position of liaison between the purchasers and the suppliers of life, health and multiline insurance and other closely-related financial products. Inherent in this role is the combination of professional duty to the client and to the company, as well. A strong ethical balance is required to avoid any conflict between these two obligations, which is why they must adhere to a strict Code of Ethics

Mission Statement

To promote high standards of ethical practice in the best interest of the insuring public. We educate, advocate, and motivate to improve the professional skills of our members who provide insurance and other closely related financial products.

Click here to join your professional association

Code of Ethics - The National Association of Insurance & Financial Advisors

Preamble: Those engaged in offering insurance and other related financial services occupy the unique position of liaison between the purchasers and the suppliers of insurance and closely related financial products. Inherent in this role is the combination of professional duty to the client and to the company as well. Ethical balance is required to avoid any conflict between these two obligations.

WHEREAS, life insurance can provide financial security following the death of a family member by helping survivors to meet immediate, ongoing, and future financial obligations and objectives; and

WHEREAS, while the majority of Americans believe that life insurance is part of a sound financial plan, millions of adults across the country have no life insurance, and many of those with coverage lack adequate life insurance protection; and

WHEREAS, the death of an insufficiently insured financial provider can result in hardship for surviving family members, especially during times of economic hardship with fewer resources for assistance and increased financial vulnerability; and

WHEREAS, this year's observance of Life Insurance Awareness Month reminds consumers to review their life insurance needs, seek professional advice and take the necessary actions to help safeguard the future financial security of their families.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, Nikki R. Haley, Governor of the Great State of South Carolina, do hereby proclaim September 2011 as throughout the state and encourage all South Carolinians to learn more about life insurance and its benefits.

Interview with Chinese Media (SMG)

QUESTIONS PROVIDED:

There are growing numbers of Chinese companies starting to invest and set up manufacturing facilities in South Carolina, what's your view of this trend of these manufacturing facilities coming to SC?

Regarding attracting investments from China, what's the advantage South Carolina State has versus other states in US? What are the incentives offered by SC in order to attract business investments to the state?

There are increasing numbers of investments by Chinese enterprises in US, reaching across more than 30 states and covering many industrial sectors. With the growing presence of Chinese companies on the land of US, do you have any concerns? If not, what are the reasons?

If you consider this as a win-win situation, what do you think these Chinese companies' will bring to SC? Same time what these Chinese companies will gain as a result)

As for the volume of future investments from Chinese companies, do you have any kind of anticipations? If so, is there a number you have in mind?

Tuesday

3:45 PM - 4:00 PM

Interview with Heike (German Media) -- Governor's Office

- What does SC offer Chinese companies that they find in no other state?
- You have been to China yourself. What lessons would you draw from your own impressions?
- Some people are afraid of Chinese investment in the west. What is your take on that?
- South Carolina has a long story of losing jobs to outsourcing not least to China. Do you understand that there might be resentment by affected workers?
- What role does foreign investment play in SC? What role has government played in getting Chinese companies to invest here?
- What are the differences between dealing with investors from China and investors from other countries?
- What is your personal experience with the Chinese employers in SC?

Afternoon Session at CU-ICAR Carroll Campbell Graduate Engineering Center – AT&T Auditorium

1:30 – 2:15 p.m.

Overview of CU-ICAR

Clemson University International Center for Automotive Research (CU-ICAR) is an advanced-technology research campus where academia, industry and government organizations engage in synergistic collaboration. With more than $200 million in commitments, CU-ICAR represents the ultimate public/private partnership, directly fueling a knowledge base critical to the automotive industry.

- Suzanne Dickerson, Business Development Manager, CU-ICAR

2:15 – 3:15 p.m.

CU-ICAR: Supporting South Carolina's Automotive Industry through Research and Workforce Development

From "Deep Orange" to "Project Green" find out how CU-ICAR continues to lead the way in innovative, student-focused projects and community partnerships utilizing public-private models that engage industry.

- Imtiaz Haque, Executive Director, Carroll A. Campbell Jr. Graduate Engineering Center
- Paul Venhovens, Associate Professor and BMW Chair in Systems Integration (Deep Orange)

BACKGROUND:

South Carolina is usually not the first state to come to mind when thinking in terms of the early days of the automotive industry, but in reality, this state does have a unique history to share. Around the time that Henry Ford was drawing up ideas for his Model T, John Gary Anderson of Rock Hill, SC was cooking up some big plans of his own. Starting out as the Rock Hill Buggy Co. in 1886, Anderson eventually grew his business he shared with father-in-law Adley D. Holler to make way for the future of automobiles. Anderson Motor Co. became the new name to fit the new vision- high-end luxury cars. From 1916 to 1925, Anderson Motor Co. made by hand luxury cars that sold from $1,650 for the five-passenger touring car, to $2,550 for the sedan; a steep comparison to Ford's Model T that was selling from $345 to $760 at the time.

Anderson had a motto that accompanied that costly price tag, "A Little Bit Higher in Price, But Made in Dixie". The Model C, the proper name for Anderson's luxury model, had a lot to offer other than a fat bill. Not only were the Model Cs manufactured by hand, but they were also built very meticulously compared to the assembly-line manufactured Model Ts; offering customers a greater piece of mind when it came to reliability. Among other things, the Model C offered color options while Ford's Model T only came with the standard black. Other luxury features included leather upholstery, wooden chassis' with steel overlays, footrests, and passenger handle bars. Unfortunately, the South could not provide enough business for Anderson Motor Co. to survive at the time, and in 1926, the company called it quits.

South Carolina's next contribution to the automotive industry came from Milliken & Company when they began making fabric seats and roofs for Henry Ford's automobiles.

Since the 1950s, the automotive cluster has gained momentum in South Carolina and in 1973 gained Michelin's North American headquarters, which produces approximately one-third of its total tire sales and contains an independent research and development facility that employs over 1,000 workers. This was followed by BMW's decision to locate its first and only North American assembly plant in South Carolina in 1992. It is important to recognize that while these additions were significant, they do not tell the whole story. The automotive cluster that has developed around these major companies encompasses a wide range of suppliers and businesses that contribute to South Carolina's economy.

Miscellaneous Facts & Figures

Overall, the auto cluster in South Carolina engenders a total economic impact of $27.1 billion (2008) through the knock-on effect of spending by the manufacturers (assemblers and suppliers). This metric, the broadest measure that defines the auto cluster in the state, is the basis for the employment generation emphasized in the study. Through the economic ripple effect of in-state spending by assemblers and suppliers, the auto cluster supports 84,935 full-time equivalent jobs in South Carolina, or 5.4 percent of the state employment base (2008). Today, that figure is more than 90,000 full-time jobs.

- The automotive/ground transportation cluster is the state's leading job machine, with automotive manufacturers exhibiting higher employment multipliers than any other industry. The highest job multiplier in the state is found for Military Vehicles Manufacturing (5.5); that is, there are 5.5 jobs total for every one direct job. These employment impacts reflect the ratio of total jobs supported in South Carolina to direct jobs in the establishment. In other words, a direct job supports an additional 4.5 jobs through multiplier effects.
- The next highest employment multipliers for South Carolina are also automotive and transportation manufacturers: Light Truck Manufacturing (4.6), and Automotive Manufacturing (4.1). Heavy Duty Truck Manufacturing also ranks in the top five job impacts. Again, these employment impacts reflect the ratio of total jobs supported in South Carolina to direct jobs in an establishment. It can be said that each direct job in Light Truck Manufacturing supports an additional 3.6 jobs and Automotive Manufacturing supports additional 3.1 jobs in South Carolina. These manufacturing industries have a great potential to create many direct jobs, so the aggregate impact on employment can be enormous.
- The average automotive manufacturing multipliers, including assemblers and suppliers, are more than 1.5 times greater than the South Carolina industry average.
- The ten counties with the highest auto employment are major metropolitan counties such as Greenville, Charleston, Berkeley, Spartanburg, York, Aiken, Florence, Richland, and Lexington. Greenwood has an especially high concentration of employment in automotive and related sectors, although it is not a major urban area.
- The automotive and transport industries boast some of the highest dollar impacts for economic activity as measured by contributions to state economic activity. Besides employment, the most important impacts arise through value added: the dollar value representing the overall contribution to the state economy. Automotive and ground transportation are shown to have the top five highest value added multipliers in the state: Heavy Duty Truck Manufacturing, Light Truck and Utility Vehicle Manufacturing, Military Vehicles, Truck Trailers, and Automobile Manufacturing. For each dollar of value creation in the factories of these industries, $1.58 to $2.07 more will be generated in additional economic activity (value added) for other businesses.
