Someone who will actually help,

Please,

I wish someone at the Social Security administration would treat me like a human being. I read up on the laws and understand "work credits expired." But I also see that people can get approved if they have medical conditions that are found after their on-set date (I have several) and mine are from birth (spina bifida) and some have also been discovered since my court hearing (endometriosis). My kidney disease has also gotten worse since my on-set date, I have gone from stage 3 to preparing for dialysis and transplant (end-stage renal disease).

But ALL of this was mentioned in my most recent application and not one employee of SSA had the heart to look past "on set date," "work credits expired" or wanted to look up any rules to try to get my life saving disability. I had my hearing in 2013. The judge disregarded the vocational expert. The VE said I could not hold any job. Etc. Since then every single one of my conditions have gotten worse and I have been diagnosed with several more painful disabilities. My last application was immediately denied. Nobody bothered to look up law, rules or help me get disability. A woman with SSA called, made me cry then refused to send me the paperwork to appeal before she hung up. People just keep telling me to apply for financial aid such as Medicaid, food stamps, United Way. I don't qualify forSSI. How would I qualify for any of that? Last year, our finances got so bad because of medical bills, we had to take out credit cards to be able to buy food. Then we had tens of thousands of dollars of medical bills and so much credit card debt that we needed to file for bankruptcy.

I can't work. I can't leave my house. I rarely leave my bed. I need someone to take a few minutes to look into the laws, the rules of the SSA and see what they can do for me. I know about other agencies, I can't get that. Disability is my LAST change to a LIFE.

Please help me.
