I'll have the crab cakes for breakfast! This great photo was taken by park visitor, Christine Martin at Huntington Beach State Park. Happy Wednesday!

Christine

The gator shots seem popular LOL. This was 7:30 a.m. in Huntington State Park.

Brad Jones I have been to HBSP countless times and have seen Alligators and I have seen Crabs... never like that though.

Pam Hyatt We take the RV to Huntington Beach SP every chance we get. One of the best CGs in SC! Yes, the gators are easy to see. Generally they stay on one side of the causeway that takes you into the ocean front park but sometimes they walk right across it!!! Never seen one in the CG though!

Wes Cooler What's really interesting is that the fresh water pond this gator is likely in not only harbors blue crab, but also mullet and flounder, all saltwater species that have habituated to the fresh spring-fed impoundment.

Angela Roach Think we are going to Huntington Beach this weekend. Looks like they have a lot of animals.

Sally Eldreth The crab does not stand a chance!

at 14:37:03 on 7/18/2012 UTC

Jean Moore Sanderson The water makes this fellow look very blue and pretty.

at 16:32:30 on 7/18/2012 UTC

Christine Martin believe it or not, these fellows are pretty shy of humans...they will swim away if you come near them...i did get rather close to get the shot (its a photographer thing LOL) but always approach wildlife with great caution!

at 16:38:56 on 7/18/2012 UTC

John Dayner How many of you remember the days at Huntington when there was a daily alligator feeding in the pond at the campground causeway? Clap hands, here come gators...
