Subject: 2016 CSG National Conference: Learning from the Past for a Better Future

For America, it all started in Williamsburg.

The founders of our country believed that a balance of ideas and opinions guided by shared principles would be vital to our young nation's future. The Council of State Governments believes the same is equally true today.

Those freedoms for which the earliest Americans fought and died--freedom of speech, of the press, of religion--could not be more important in today's complex world, where we continue to wrestle with debates and concerns that are deeply rooted in our history. Poverty, taxes, immigration, national defense, health care, race relations--these and so many other issues facing our nation today may be traced back to the earliest hours of America's founding.

We hope you will join us for the 2016 CSG National Conference Dec. 8-11 in Colonial Williamsburg, Virginia, where, together, we will explore many opportunities for us to create a better future by learning from the past. Registration for the conference is now open online at www.csg.org/2016nationalconference. We hope you can join us!
