sarah_st_onge The cheapest tent on the shelf will not keep you dry. Save up and buy a quality tent with good ratings. (Learned the hard way).

denaj811 We loved camping at Keowee-Toxaway back at the end of June!! The hiking trails are great and the wooded campsites were really nice! Highly recommend!

evanstiner My hack is to not sleep on the ground. A quality hammock system will elevate (see what I did there) your camping game. You'll have the best sleep of your life.

bella77902 @evanstiner great advice! Could you link the one you have? You put the hammock inside of your tent?
at 13:06:29 on 8/20/2020 UTC

evanstiner @bella77902 I don't have a singular system from one manufacturer. My summer system is a @hobohammocks with a Chill Gorilla Rain Fly. My winter set up adds an underquilt and top quilt. I'm looking at getting a more robust rain fly that is more like a tent.

sabslaf4 Layer a good tarp between your tent and the ground - keeps inside your tent much drier ☺
at 13:30:56 on 8/20/2020 UTC

gracie_needs_supernatural_ Put a tarp under your tent! Helps with morning dew and keeping dirt out of your tent
at 13:32:13 on 8/20/2020 UTC

cwbullard Do your food prep at home. Saves time at the campsite and you can still have great meals.

terreystreath For a great breakfast that is mobile: prior to camping/backpacking trip, open and dump 6 packets of instant cheese grits into a bowl. Add 1 packet of Lipton's powdered cream of chicken soup. Mix well. Store in a large plastic storage bag. Shelf stable for months. When it's breakfast time, scoop out what ever serving size you wish in a bowl or cup ... add hot water & stir to desired consistency. Doesnt need butter or salt. Great for backpacking. Got this tip from an outdoor seminar weekend at Table Rock State Park years ago.

eanderson06 Our family enjoys a delicacy of prepackaged pasta with chopped up roasted hot dogs to carb load with protein for a full day of hiking the next day. We love camping by the river Jones Gap state park!

mfriddle I always like to add waterproofing and seam seal (if needed) my tent every other season. Nobody likes likes to wake up to drips.
