Brian,

Thank you for taking the time to talk with me today. I am a Registered Nurse Consultant and have served the SC Nursing Homes since 1982.

I had an experience recently that really has bothered me and I need to have a better understanding of what is considered appropriate for "freedom of information"; I can best explain the question by explaining the scenario.

We had a resident at our facility that fell below the DHHS criteria for Skilled/Intermediate Care. We followed all the LOC guidelines and the family was very upset and we explained the process and told them how they could appeal which they decided to do.

The administrator of the facility called DHHS and spoke with a representative to get clarification on the process. A short while after the phone call, the family member told the Administrator that she knew he had called DHHS and gave the name of the person he talked with, the date of the phone call, and the content of the Administrator's and DHHS employee's conversation.

The Administrator asked me if DHHS shared information regarding phone calls made to them from the facilities. I told him I did not think so.

About 3 weeks later the LOC hearing was held and in the hearing the family member stated that the Administrator had made a call to DHHS on a specific date, the person talked to, and the content of the conversation and further stated this action showed his incompetence in knowing how to do the level of care process.

I was shocked when I heard her do this and it validated the Administrator's concern that his conversations had been shared with the family member.

My question is: When a facility calls a state agency for clarification of a regulation to be sure they have followed proper protocol or for any other reason, Should they assume that this information will be shared with the public. This is very important for the facilities to know as I have always encouraged facilities to call state agencies when they have concerns or questions and need to let them know this phone call will also become public information. The family member that called is also a House of Representative member, would this make any difference?

I would appreciate your response as soon as possible. The phone where I can be reached the easiest is 803-609-0543.

Thank you for your assistance.

Do we need to respond, given this.

>>> Brenda Hyleman 10/28/2009 12:53 PM >>>
Nancy called Nicole this AM and I sat in on the call. She had us on speaker phone with Tom Turner, Pres. and Ben Spurling, Adm. We were grilled on the issues she raised in the letter to Bryan, but at the end of the call they seemed okay with the answers we provided concerning the sharing of information.

Is there a need to provide a written reply to this letter?
Brenda

Ms. Day has not let go of this. She has been calling around several people. Log it to us and we will respond. What she is saying has been greatly exaggerated. I was on the call with the referenced conversation. (I think you were as well...it was when you and Alicia conferenced Nicole and me in with a meeting you were having with Erickson.)

>>> Bryan Kost 10/28/2009 8:33 AM >>>
I went to that hearing.
