The first two pictures are “normal” ... water is now up to bottom of large retaining wall in back yard and covering those posts above my husband’s head. The 2nd and 3rd pics from the left are of the same place — all that grass and embankment is covered now. Does Corps have any idea what kind of damage they are about to cause by allowing water to go any higher? You all were able to get them to slow down a bit in 2013 ... we would really appreciate your help.

Thanks
