

Account: South Carolina State Parks

Content type: Facebook Page - Timeline posts

Record ID: 20170221South-Carolina-State-ParksTimeline-posts52748_10155018210748166

South Carolina State Parks

at 13:00:00 on 2/21/2017 UTC · 🌐

TIDBIT! Hooded mergansers are a striking sight on our waters, often seen in winter diving for fish and other aquatic life. Males boast a bold black and white “hood” or crest while the females is a beautiful cinnamon color. Be on the lookout for these and other waterfowl this winter! Photos taken by a friend of the parks. www.southcarolinaparks.com

Mary Smith Irving Where is this?

at 13:05:19 on 2/21/2017 UTC

Shannon Kelly For over a month now, we've had a male with 5 females hanging out on the pond in our neighborhood here in Myrtle Beach. They are adorable (and so tiny compared to the resident Mallard ducks)!

at 13:48:31 on 2/21/2017 UTC

Patricia Miles Here in Québec, we see them in april...when spring is coming back.

at 23:17:27 on 2/21/2017 UTC

South Carolina State Parks The photos were taken at Sesquicentennial State Park in Columbia. www.southcarolinaparks.com/sesqui

at 2:39:40 on 2/23/2017 UTC