In conjunction with the partnership, the Charleston Mayor's office has suggested that Steve Tanger tape a PSA with the Governor to help drive people to the centers to donate. This would reach a mass audience in the coastal South Carolina area and would be free of cost.

This year the LCFB will distribute 24 million pounds of food—5 million pounds of which is fresh produce. Natural disasters like the historic flooding seen in South Carolina put adequate nutrition further out of reach for those in the community who struggle with hunger, and force others who have never needed it before to seek food assistance. The demand is greater at this time than ever before.
