You should be able to get into it now. You may have to sign in.....then it will give you a message...you may have to close that tab.....then reopen it.....and then it should show that you are signed in. Once you are in...save it to your favorites or bookmark it so it will take you directly to it.

Let me know if you are still having issues with this.

Hey Danny,

Yes, I am aware that there is an issue with accessing The State. Hayden informed me of the issue on last week. Some of the papers made some changes to the accessing of their E-Editions on their websites. I have contacted The State last Thursday and it is an issue on their end that is not letting us in. After speaking with someone at The State, they were going to call me back to resolve the issue after getting with their IT staff to resolve the issue. Sorry for the interruption in service. I will be working on getting it taken care of this morning and keep you informed.

Thanks!
