She's gonna talk to the Washington Post on Thursday morning about SIBs. Sounds like Gov. Malloy will as well, since Connecticut was also a winner of the Harvard Sweepstakes.

Anyway, they just asked me for a little background on the whole thing, so I just slapped this together. What's not in here yet is kind of a "punchline" overview of the 3-5 key points for her to hit on. I'll work on that shortly, but wanted to kick this to you in the meantime to make sure (1) I didn't lie anywhere and (2) there's not some other major point that's gotta get hit. Thanks.
