Please make sure a staff member is in contact with Mr. McCoy with what steps/ actions we are taking to assist in a possible solution.

Thanks, KV

Katherine - I would love to say this was a simple issue to solve. Some combination of the law and our policy prevent Mr. McCoy from doing what he would like to do at this time. I am not prepared to suggest that our law / policy is in the best interest of the state. I am going to pull together some of the major stakeholders (new and used car dealer associations, my Dealer Licensing unit, my field office division and my attorney) to understand the 2nd and 3rd order impacts of whether this will create other problems for all dealers (opening the door for internet sales without a physical presence in the state, etc.). Hope to get this resolved before the end of next week. Happy to provide more information by phone if required. Thanks.

Kevin

At that time I received a new DMV inspector, she asked me to sign a separate form saying I would only sell cars at the location and nothing more. I asked her why, I was told because the location was so big. I asked did I currently meet the state requirements for getting a dealers license, she said yes. I said then issue my license, I refused to enter into a separate contract with the state of SC when it was not required.

The same DMV inspector told my wife that one of the business' would have to go, because the new one was not automotive related. However, as I read the SC DMV manual it says " The principal business conducted in the building by the dealer (except motorcycle dealers) must be the selling or exchanging of vehicles."
