

From: Symmes, Brian <BrianSymmes@gov.sc.gov>
To:
Date: 10/22/2015 5:07:55 PM
Subject: SC Front Pages – Thursday, October 22, 2015

SC Front Pages – Thursday, October 22, 2015

SPORTS

QB KEY IN MIAMI GAME

METRO

He makes 'shine in Reidville

The Greenville News

A GANNETT COMPANY

THURSDAY,
OCTOBER 22, 2015
GREENVILLEONLINE.COM

Study explores ties between port, Upstate manufacturers

POINT OF IMPACT

RUDOLPH BELL
DBELL@GREENVILLEONLINE.COM

The strong business ties between the port of Charleston and Upstate manufacturers have long been recognized as a key feature of the South Carolina economy.

Now the South Carolina Ports Authority has new numbers to underscore the point.

A study commissioned by the authority credits state port facilities and the companies that use them with an estimated $53 billion "economic impact" across South Carolina — an amount

$53 BILLION

Economic impact of port facilities and the companies that use them across South Carolina, according to a new study.

$27 BILLION

Amount of that impact occurring in Upstate, over 50 percent.

11.5%

Percentage of jobs across the state accounted for by manufacturing.

15.3%

Percentage of jobs Upstate accounted for by manufacturing.

PHOTOS BY MYKAL
MCELDOWNEY@STAFF

BMW X5 and X6 models, on the left, roll through the final finish assembly line this week. BMW X3 and X4 models are placed on train cars, right, for shipping at the BMW Manufacturing plant in Greer.

equal to more than 9 percent of the state's annual gross product.

More than half of the impact, about $27 billion worth, occurs in the Upstate, according to the study.

The reason so much of the impact occurs in the Upstate is because manufacturers are the primary users of port facilities, and there's a greater concentration of manufacturing in the Upstate than any other region of South Carolina, according to the study.

Manufacturing accounts for 15.3 percent of

See IMPACT, Page 4A

Cargo weight is cited in Alaska air crash

NTSB reports on 2013 accident that killed 9 from Greenville

DAVID DYKES
DDYKES@GREENVILLEONLINE.COM

Cargo weight likely is to blame for an Alaska plane crash that killed nine people from Greenville two years ago, the National Transportation Safety Board said Wednesday.

The air taxi went into an aerodynamic stall at the Soldotna, Alaska, airport on July 7, 2013, after the operator failed to determine the actual cargo weight, which led to the loading and operation of the airplane outside of its weight and center of gravity limits, NTSB investigators said in the agency's final report on the crash.

Contributing to the accident was the Federal Aviation Administration's failure to require weight and balance documentation for that type of air taxi flight, investigators said.

Family members of the victims found little solace in the NTSB report.

"We're devastated," said Rachel Dickert, whose daughter, Stacey McManus of Greenville, and two grandchildren were killed.

FAA officials said in a statement they will evaluate the report to determine if any safety actions are needed.

See CRASH, Page 9A

HILLARY CLINTON'S BENGHAZI TESTIMONY

FIVE THINGS TO WATCH FOR

MARY ORNDORFF TROYAN ■ THE GREENVILLE NEWS

WASHINGTON - The House Select Committee on Benghazi holds its fourth public hearing on Thursday with only one seat at the witness table — for former Secretary of State Hillary Clinton. What to watch for:

1. NEW EVIDENCE

Committee chairman Rep. Trey Gowdy and his Republican colleagues say they have uncovered new information about the circumstances surrounding the attacks. Expect questions about why longtime Clinton friend Sidney Blumenthal, who was not a government employee, was advising Clinton on U.S. policy in Libya; about which State Department workers handled requests that security in Benghazi be upgraded; and about why those requests went unheeded.

Rep. Trey
Gowdy, R-S.C.

2. TREY GOWDY'S ROLE

The former South Carolina prosecutor is no stranger to the political limelight in Washington, but today's hearing will be the biggest media moment of his five-year congressional career. His pledge that the inquiry would be fair and non-political was tested recently after a House Republican leader applauded the committee's negative impact on Clinton's presidential poll numbers.

3. HILLARY CLINTON'S ROLE

The first time Clinton testified about Benghazi she got into a heated exchange on why it took so long to conclude the attack wasn't the spontaneous outgrowth of a protest, but instead a coordinated terrorist attack. Her response — "What difference, at this point, does it make?" — has haunted her in Republican attack ads. Clinton's allies say the tables are turned this time, and the hearing could end up looking like a taxpayer-funded political attack.

4. PARTISANSHIP ON PARADE

The committee includes seven Republicans and five Democrats who have accused each other of political dishonesty in letters and press releases for months. Their differences will be showcased in person today, especially if Republicans treat Clinton as a hostile witness and Democrats rush to her defense.

5. THE DRAMA OUTSIDE

The 2016 presidential campaign looms large, even if it's never mentioned at the hearing, which could go all day. Clinton's political allies have a rapid response team at the ready to counter Republican attacks; Republicans are eager to prove that the investigation, which has spent about $4.6 million in taxpayer money, will provide a factual, definitive account of the attacks and who in the U.S. government should be held responsible.

INSIDE: THE BENGHAZI INVESTIGATION:
WHAT YOU NEED TO KNOW. Page 6A

USA TODAY

BIDEN BOWS OUT OF
PRESIDENTIAL RACE. 1B

INSIDE

Abby 4D
Area news 3A
Bridge 4DClassifieds 4C
Comics 5D
Crossword 4DLotteries 2A
Obituaries 8A
Sports 3CTelevision 4D
U.S. World 1B
Voices 10AHigh 80
Low 51www.greenvilleonline.com
Circulation hotline
800-736-7136
Classified Ads 298-4221Greenville News-Piedmont Co.
A Gannett Newspaper
139th year No. 245 •
32 pages

The Post and Courier

FOUNDED 1803 • WINNER OF THE 2015 PULITZER PRIZE FOR PUBLIC SERVICE

Thursday, October 22, 2015

POSTANDCOURIER.COM

Charleston, S.C. $1.00

Benghazi, House inquiry and Clinton

With secretary of state testifying Thursday, just where does the case stand?

Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton listens to questions from lawmakers during her testimony in January 2013 on Capitol Hill before a Senate Foreign Relations Committee hearing on the U.S. diplomatic mission in Benghazi, Libya. Ambassador Chris Stevens and three other Americans were killed during the attack.

BY DEB RIECHMANN
AND MATTHEW DALY
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The deadly 2012 attack on a U.S. compound in Benghazi, Libya, moves to the forefront of the presidential race when Democratic front-runner Hillary Rodham Clinton testifies Thursday before a Republican-led House committee.

Republicans say the investigation is focused on the four Americans, including Ambassador Chris Stevens, killed in the Sept. 11, 2012, assault. Democrats and a few Republicans say the probe, which has spent at least $4.5 million so far, is focused on Clinton and has undermined her White House bid.

Rep. Trey Gowdy, R-S.C., the committee chairman, says he wants to ask Clinton, who was secretary of state when the assault occurred, why U.S. security at the compound was not beefed up as conditions in Libya deteriorated and other countries, including Britain, were pulling out.

A look at the investigation:

Inside

What people are saying about Clinton's upcoming testimony.
Page A8

Online

POLL: How important do you think Benghazi still is? Go to postandcourier.com/polls to vote.

MORE COVERAGE: To read more about Benghazi, go to postandcourier.com

What happened in Benghazi?

The attack on the U.S. diplomatic compound in the Mediterranean port city in Libya occurred on Sept. 11, 2012 — the 11th anniversary of the 9/11 attacks.

The attack came in three waves, spread over eight hours at two locations.

Without mentioning her by name, Biden criticized Clinton's assertion in

Clinton and Benghazi

Hillary Rodham Clinton gets low marks from Republicans for her handling of the investigation surrounding the 2012 attack in Benghazi, Libya, but half of Democrats and Independents have no strong opinion, according to an AP-GFK poll.

Q: Overall, do you approve, disapprove or neither approve nor disapprove of the way Hillary Clinton has handled questions about the 2012 attack on the U.S. consulate in Benghazi, Libya, while she was secretary of state?

Q: Do you think the congressional investigation into the 2012 attack in Benghazi is a justified attempt to find out what happened or a politically motivated attack on Hillary Clinton?

NOTE: Results based on survey of 1,027 U.S. adults interviewed Oct. 15-19. Margin of error is 3.3 percentage points, higher for subgroups.

SOURCE: GFK PUBLIC AFFAIRS & CORPORATE COMMUNICATIONS. AP

Flooding broke 17 river flow records

Early damage figure easily over $1 billion

BY BO PETERSEN
bpeters@postandcourier.com

Nearly 200,000 gallons of water flowed past (Graham) every second when the flood was at its worst. A preliminary report issued Wednesday by the U.S. Geological Survey said the Edisto River's volume of flow at its gauge there was the heaviest recorded in 87 years of record keeping.

And the Edisto was only one of 17 rivers across the state to break a record for the flow.

Another 15 rivers had flows that were in the top five recorded.

"To have the extent of flooding that we did on a statewide level was incredible," said John Shelton, section chief for the S.C. office of the South Atlantic Water Science Center. "We didn't expect to see the number of high flows that we did. Just the magnitude of it, and the focus on South Carolina, it almost seemed confined to the state."

The volume of water in the Edisto at the flood's peak was 15 times the average gauged over 75 years, according to survey data.

Please see FLOOD, Page A6

N. Chas. election airs 'dirty laundry'

Summey harassment suit raised as issue

BY BRENDA RINDGE
brindge@postandcourier.com

The North Charleston mayor's race continues to degenerate.

After it was revealed last week that candidate John Singletary was convicted of soliciting a prostitute, he and supporters have pointed to a sexual harassment lawsuit filed and dismissed against Mayor Keith Summey as an example of what's wrong with the current administration.

In the 1999 suit, two former clerks claimed that Summey "harasses the female employees of the city by engaging in unwanted sexual advances, physical caresses and kissing on the lips." Summey denied the claims.

Please see SUMMEY, Page A6

Biden won't seek presidency, but vows 'I won't be silent'

BY PETER BAKER and
MAGGIE HABERMAN
New York Times

WASHINGTON — Vice President Joe Biden said Wednesday that he would not be a candidate in the 2016 presidential campaign, bringing to a close a three-month exploration that began shortly after the death of his eldest child and threatened to fracture the Democratic Party.

Biden's decision, announced in the White House Rose Garden with President Barack Obama looking on, ends one of the most public episodes of indecision about a political path since

Biden

Poll
What do you think of Vice President Joe Biden's decision not to run for president? Go to postandcourier.com/polls to vote.

Gov. Mario Cuomo of New York left a plane bound for New Hampshire idling on a tarmac in 1991 as he fretted over whether to run for president. With just 15 weeks until the Iowa caucuses open the voting, Biden's decision also closes the door on one of the biggest potential challenges to Hillary Rodham Clinton's second attempt at capturing the Democratic nomination.

"Unfortunately, I believe we're out of time, the time necessary to mount a winning campaign for the nomination," Biden said. "But while I will not be a candidate, I will not be silent."

Indeed, he used the rest of his 13-minute speech to outline the case he would have made as a candidate and to take a few implicit jabs at Clinton.

Without mentioning her by name, Biden criticized Clinton's assertion in last week's Democratic debate that the Republicans are her enemies. "They are our opposition; they're not our enemies," he said, repeating a point he has made several times in the last 48 hours. "And for the sake of the country, we have to work together."

Reading from a prepared text flashed on flat screens in the Rose Garden, Biden argued against the sort of backsliding interventionism Clinton has championed in the Middle East and elsewhere. "The argument that we just have to do something when bad people do bad things isn't good enough," he said.

Please see BIDEN, Page A8

Inside

LOCAL

Riley shows support for battle against addiction, A2

BUSINESS

Cargo business at port up 11 percent in September, B1

CHARLESTON SCENE

Nonprofit uses former 'Army Wives' building for 'Sound and Light' art display, E18

Mostly sunny.
High 80, Low 56.
Complete 5-day
Forecast, B10

Bridge...B9 Comics...B8-9 Movies...E10
Business...B1 (crosswords) B8, B4
Charleston Scene...E1 Editorials...A10 Sports...C1
Classifieds...B1 Local...A2 Television...B7

Charleston
Deals today

Footlight Players
$35 for two to "Play Fever."
See Page A2.

THE SEARCH FOR USC'S NEXT COACH

Cowboys
assistant Bisaccia
lauded by peers. 1B

Midseason report card ranks Clemson's season, 1B

THURSDAY OCTOBER 22 2015

$1.00

VOL. 125TH No. 247
STAY CONNECTED THESTATE.COM

FACEBOOK.COM/THESTATENEWS
TWITTER.COM/THESTATE

TODAY: SUNNY HI 79 LO 51
YESTERDAY: HI 79 LO 42 PRECIP. 0.00
FORECAST: 10C

The State

NATION

JOE SAYS NO TO PRESIDENTIAL RUN

Vice president says he will not seek Democratic nomination for president. Plus, S.C. reaction, 4A

GOGAMECOCKS THE MAGAZINE BASKETBALL PREVIEW

The special hoops edition features previews, schedules, rosters and more. Inside home-delivered papers

BUSINESS

MORE PARKING IN FIVE POINTS

Exxon station, long a Five Points staple, will become a parking lot, 7B

THE STATE @ 125

DARLA MOORE'S IMPACT

She made her millions on Wall Street. But the Lake City benefactor's impact has been felt

THE FLOOD OF 2015

Swept-away dam takes road with it

Residents along Arcadia Lakes Drive East, Lake Arcadia Lane and Skii Lane had to devise a new way to get into and out of their neighborhood after floodwaters wrecked the Cary Lake dam and also washed away the road that ran on top of it.

About 15 residents use a makeshift road to get to their homes, cut off when dam failed

Road repairs will have to wait until dam is rebuilt,
Transportation Department says

Flood insurance? 'I think I'll keep it'

BY CASSIE COPE
cope@thestate.com

To get to their homes, some Cary Lake residents now have to use a makeshift passage-way.

Normal access to their homes was lost when Cary
Lake dam was washed away in the Oct. 4 flood.

Now, they drive on a makeshift road, created by removing a chain-link fence and using gravel to extend a driveway onto a nearby street, to get to work or shop.

The residents in about 15 homes on Skii Lane, a portion of Arcadia Lakes Drive East and Lake Arcadia Lane lost
access to nearby Trenholm Road when the Cary Lake dam failed, taking with it the road that was atop it.

"I knew we were trapped," said Jimmy Adams, a retired minister who lives on Cary Lake.

On Oct. 4, floodwater in the rising Cary Lake threatened homes in the area. It drained like a bathtub when the dam broke, Adams said.

But the broken dam also left the residents stranded.

To get out of the area now,
residents drive on Lake Arcadia Lane to what was previously a dead end. There, residents use the makeshift road that carries them out onto a nearby street.

SEE CARY LAKE, 5A

THESTATE.COM

Video of the now-isolated neighborhood along the former Cary Lake

INSIDE

How do you get aid
after the flood? A guide. 1C

State orders road atop
Windsor Lake dam
closed, citing safety concerns. 3A

Richland 1, 2 school systems to resume
normal hours next week. 3A

COMMITTEE TESTIMONY

Big day ahead for Clinton, Gowdy's Benghazi panel

The Beaufort Gazette

THURSDAY, October 22, 2015

beaufortgazette.com

Established in 1897 75 cents

County plans on sales tax hit snag

Council finds school district has similar plan

By REBECCA LURYE
rlurye@islandpacket.com
843-706-8155

A new proposal to pay for millions of dollars worth of school improvements could sidetrack Beaufort County Council's plans to hold a referendum for a sales-tax increase.

After three years of attempts to raise the sales tax by 1 percent to pay for infrastructure needs and local projects, council members learned last week that the Beaufort County School District may seek a sales-tax referendum of its own in November 2016.

That news has prompted some council members to favor dropping a county sales-tax hike, worried voters would balk at the prospect of referendums from both the county and school board.

Now, an independent county commission that met for the first time Wednesday is beginning work to develop the county's referendum, but chances are fading that the proposal will make it onto the ballot next year, let alone get voters' backing.

Council members at a finance committee meeting Monday considered putting the commission on hold until they decide whether to pursue a 1 percent sales tax, but they ultimately chose to let the commission's first meeting go forward. On Wednesday, the independent group learned about their responsibilities and elected Mike Sutton of Beaufort as chairman.

But alternatives to a capital projects sales tax remain possible, county officials say.

They could choose to partner with the school district on a joint sales-tax referendum or could ask voters to approve a 1 percent local-option sales-tax, which would provide property-tax relief to residents as well as revenue for the county and local towns.

GETTING READY

Pat Conroy

A behind-the-scenes look at Pat Conroy exhibit in Beaufort

LIZ FARRELL • Staff photo

Jessica Dowd Crouch, archivist at Irvin Department of Rare Books and Special Collections at the University of South Carolina's Ernest F. Hollings Library and curator of the "My Wound Is Geography: Pat Conroy and the Lowcountry" exhibit at Historic Beaufort Foundation's Verdier House, which opens Saturday, arranges material in a display case Monday. Helping Crouch is Erin Patterson, a graduate student at USC.

Around 1 p.m. Monday, a white van from Enterprise pulled up at the corner of Scott and Bay streets in Beaufort and parked.

After 2 1/2 hours traveling South Carolina's roads, where each bump created an echoing clamor in the back of the van, the driver and her passenger were afraid to inspect their cargo.

They thought they would find nothing but shards of glass and scattered papers.

LIZ FARRELL
lfarrell@islandpacket.com
843-706-8140
<http://bit.ly/lizfarrell>

thanks to the state Department of Transportation.

Though a question did remain for bystanders.

IF YOU GO

• WHAT: "My Wound Is Geography: Pat Conroy and the Lowcountry," an exhibit that celebrates best-selling novelist Pat Conroy's relationship to the Beaufort area
• WHEN: Opens Saturday at Historic Beaufort Foundation's Verdier House, 801 Bay St., Beaufort. Verdier House is open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Saturday

• TICKETS: $10
• DETAILS: www.historicbeaufort.org, 843-379-3331

• ALSO: At 1:50 p.m. Oct. 30, University of South Carolina archivist and exhibit curator Jessica Dowd Crouch will give an hour-long gallery talk at Verdier House that is free and open to the public. The talk is part of the weekend-long celebration of Conroy's 70th birthday.

BUSINESS YOUTUBE TROTS OUT SUBSCRIPTIONS

YouTube unveiled a new $10-a-month plan in the U.S. called Red that combines ad-free videos, new original series, movies from top YouTubers, and on-demand unlimited streaming music. 6A

SPORTS

MIDSEASON NCAA STOCK REPORT

The college football season is only half over and already four FBS coaches have been fired, one was suspended for three games and another future Hall of Famer has resigned. 6B

THURSDAY OCTOBER 22 2015

$1

VOLUME 65, No. 295
STAY CONNECTED MYRTLEBEACHONLINE.COM

FACEBOOK.COM/SUNNEWS
TWITTER.COM/THESUNNEWS

NEWS ALL DAY,
YOUR WAY

Biden decides against run for the White House

In Rose Garden address with Obama at his side, vice president says window has closed

Decision ends month of speculation

Vows to not stay silent, urges Democrats to run on Obama's record

BY JULIE PACE
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON

After months of tortured indecision, Vice President Joe Biden said Wednesday he won't be a candidate in the 2016 White House campaign, solidifying Hillary Rodham Clinton's status as the Democratic front-runner and the party's likely heir to President Barack Obama's legacy.

Standing under bright sun in the White House Rose Garden, Biden spoke movingly about mourning the recent death of his son, Beau, a process he said does not match the political calendar. While he said his family was emotionally pre-

SEE BIDEN, 4A

LOCAL

PUPPY MILL POLICY ONE STEP CLOSER

County Council members gave their second vote of support for an ordinance designed to help county officials better identify businesses that value profit above animal welfare. 3A

LOCAL

WACCAMAW WILDLIFE REFUGE PLANS HUNTING EXPANSION

Federal officials plan to expand the acreage allowed for hunting, and to include more opportunities for area youth to participate. 3A

BUSINESS

BOEING SEES SOARING PROFITS

Faster production of commercial jets continues to drive profits, which include a 25 percent jump in the third quarter. The Chicago-based company posted a $1.7 bil-

VOLUNTEERS HELP FLOOD VICTIMS GET THE MUD OUT

Ed Figart powerwashes debris from a garage off Sherwood Drive in Conway on Tuesday. Figart and dozens of volunteers from the Southern Baptist Convention Disaster Relief teams are in the area to help residents dealing with flood cleanup. The teams do all the work for free. Some of the work they do is cleanup, hauling heavy objects, demolition and mold remediation. They have a headquarters at Living Water Baptist Church in Longs off S.C. 9. Figart is volunteering from Pennsylvania.

ONLINE

For more photos and a video, log on to MyrtleBeachOnline.com

JANET BLACKMON MORGAN (jblackmon@thesunnews.com)

FLOOD OF 2015

Horry County moves OPCON to normal as Waccamaw recedes

BY ELIZABETH TOWNSEND
etownsend@thesunnews.com

Horry County officials switched operating conditions back to normal as the transition from flooding response to recovery continues, and the Waccamaw River keeps slowly receding.

At 10 a.m. Wednesday, Horry County officials moved their Operating Condition level from

Horry County is now at OPCON 5, but checkpoints and boat patrols will be ongoing

River continues to recede and is in moderate flood stage

Georgetown County still at OPCON 4 and SCDOT debris pickup starting this week

County is operating under normal conditions; however the Horry County Emergency Operations Center remains activated Lisa Bourcier, Horry County spokeswoman, said in a news release.

While the county is shifting will continue to staff security at checkpoints along the Waccamaw River, but will begin demolishing those operations as the river recedes and property owners are able to get back home, Bourcier said.

The South Carolina Department of Natural Resources and Horry County police will also continue boat patrols along the Waccamaw until further notice.

Federal Emergency Management Agency workers are running Disaster Recovery Centers to assist flood victims at the North Strand Recreation Center at 120 Highway 57 South in Little River and the South Strand Recreation Center at 9650 Scipio Lane in Myrtle Beach.

Auto insurance and small business associations are the

CELEBRATE CRAFT BEER AT HUB CITY BREWFEST

ESCAPE, D1

SPARTANS HONOR FALLEN TEAMMATES

SPORTS, B1

Herald-Journal

SPARTANBURG, SOUTH CAROLINA

Thursday, October 22, 2015

GoUpstate.com

75¢

GoUpstate

@GoUpstate

TODAY FRI SAT
78°/46° 79°/52° 73°/55°
Complete forecast, B6

UPSTATE

Bright could face challenge for Senate seat

Former Spartanburg Regional Healthcare System CEO Ingo Angemeier is considering a run for the S.C. Senate District 12 seat held by Lee Bright. C1

Expansion possible for inland port

The South Carolina Ports Authority's $50 million inland port in Spartanburg County could be expanded next year. C1

NATION

Deadline nears on averting default

Washington is barreling toward a deadline to raise the government's borrowing cap and avert a first-ever default on U.S. payments, but there's no sign yet on Capitol Hill of a viable solution. A3

Fractious House conservatives resist Ryan's call to unify

Paul Ryan presses for the Republican unity he insists he needs to be House speaker. It's an elusive goal in both Congress and the

CAMPAIGN 2016

Biden won't run for president

By Julie Pace
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — After months of tortured indecision, Vice President Joe Biden said Wednesday he won't be a candidate in the 2016 White House campaign, solidifying Hillary Rodham Clinton's status as the Democratic front-runner and the party's likely heir to President Barack Obama's legacy.

Standing under bright sun in the White House Rose Garden,

Biden spoke movingly about mourning the recent death of his son, Beau, a process he said does not match the political calendar. While he said his family was emotionally prepared to undertake a grueling presidential campaign, they arrived at that decision too late for him to mount a credible bid for a job that has long been the north star of his political ambitions.

"Unfortunately, I believe we're out of time," said Biden, flanked by his wife, Jill, and the president.

Biden's decision puts to rest the uncertainty hanging over the Democratic primary. The race now will likely settle into a two-person contest between Clinton and Vermont Sen. Bernie Sanders, who has energized the party's liberal base but lacks Clinton's campaign infrastructure and support from party leaders.

Biden was seen by some Democrats as an ideal blend of Clinton's establishment credentials and Sanders' populist appeal. Interest in his potential candidacy was fueled both by an outpouring of affection after his son succumbed to cancer in May and the persistent questions about Clinton's viability, particularly amid revelations about her controversial email use at the State Department.

However, Clinton appeared to calm nervous supporters

SEE BIDEN, A9

HAYNE STREET IN ARCADIA

Neighbors: Washout was preventable

Residents say little attention given to culvert safety concerns

By Daniel J. Gross
daniel.gross@shj.com

A man nearly drowned in a valley that filled with rushing water in Arcadia after he drove into a culvert that had washed out during a massive storm this month — and witnesses say it could have been prevented.

Kyle Melton, who saw the crash, said he had noticed "bubbling water" pooling at the culvert, eroding the ground underneath the road about four weeks before a massive storm pounded the state in early October.

"To see something like that happen ... All of us take this road every single day going across this bridge, and for it to go out like that, it could have been any one of us," he said.

Some neighbors said when they reported safety concerns before the storm nothing was done, but state and local agencies say they have no record of complaints.

The washout was the only major damage to Spartan-

A portion of Hayne Street in Arcadia washed out during a powerful storm Oct. 1. Crews are now replacing the culvert but neighbors say the damage could have been prevented had their concerns been addressed about standing water there. ALEX C. HICKS JR./ALEX.HICKS@SHJ.COM

County when a woman drove into flood waters on New Cut Road and became submerged.

The man who fell into the culvert around 3 a.m. Oct. 1 was stranded, hanging onto a tree, for about 45 minutes before emergency responders arrived and pulled him to safety.

"He was on the verge of collapsing," Spartanburg County Emergency Management Director Doug Bryson said.

NEWS: Drug raid nets 15 in Laurens County, 2A

INDEX-JOURNAL

VOL. 97, NO. 222

 indexjournal.com

2 SECTIONS, 18 PAGES

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 22, 2015

DAILY 75¢, SUNDAY $1.50

SELF-HELP IN AN EMERGENCY

A group of Self Regional staff members lift a volunteer patient onto a gurney outside the hospital's tower during an emergency evacuation practice.

Hospital runs evacuation drill from Patient Tower

Story and photos by Mary Kate McGowan
mkgowan@indexjournal.com

Staff volunteers drag a volunteer patient from the Self Regional tower as part of the evacuation drill.

Emergency codes rang through the halls of Self Regional Medical Center on Wednesday morning. But the statement "This is a test," accompanied the message, so the hospital's patients and staff on one side of the campus continued with their morning tasks.

But on the other side of the Self Regional tower, staff volunteers were evacuating fake patients as firefighters battled a fake fire.

No real hospital patients were affected by the drill. Volunteers and dummies played the role of evacuated patients, who were taken to a triage area between the Patient Tower and the emergency room entrance. One man even had to play the role of a woman who was having an ectopic pregnancy.

The full-scale emergency evacuation exercise, which was funded by a federal Hospital Preparedness Program grant, called for a partial evacuation of the tower, and staff members practiced moving patients with different scenarios and mobility levels, which included carefully dragging patients in sleds down flights of stairs.

See SELF, page 4A

■ SMITH TRIAL

'I didn't know' he'd die

Investigation, autopsy focus of second day

By DAMIAN DOMINGUEZ
ddominguez@indexjournal.com

Jury deliberations in the Wayne Smith murder trial could begin this morning, Judge Frank Addy Jr. said. The bulk of the trial on Wednesday involved testimony from the doctor that performed the autopsy and the lead investigator.

Smith, 26, is charged with murder and strong arm robbery in connection to the July 12, 2013 robbery and death of Phillip Joseph Baer. He pleaded guilty to the strong arm robbery charge Monday. Baer's laptop, truck and TV were missing when his son, Phillip Franklin Baer, found him dead in his home.

Heart attack

Baer, 68, died of a heart attack in his apartment at 1522 Parkway Court some time before his body was found on July 14, 2013, said Greenwood County Coroner Senny Cox.

According to the autopsy report filed July 15, 2013 by forensic pathologist Dr. Brett Woodard,

See AUTOPSY, page 4A

Defender argues for directed verdict

Public Defender Patricia Bolen asked Judge Frank Addy Jr. to issue a directed verdict of not guilty Wednesday in the murder trial of Wayne Smith.

"There's not been any evidence of malice aforethought presented in this case," she said.

She also argued that the solicitor's office could not prove that a murder happened without the statements given by Smith, which they must be able to do.

After hearing arguments from Bolen and Senior Assistant Solicitor Elizabeth White, Addy decided that enough corroboration existed that the state could argue a murder happened independent of Smith's statements, and that his guilty plea to strong arm robbery implied that some physical contact must have happened.

The request for a directed verdict was denied.

— Damian Dominguez

Morning News

THURSDAY OCTOBER 22, 2015

TODAY'S WEATHER

Mostly sunny and comfortable.
High 82, low 50.
DETAILS 2A

www.snow.com

The Voice of the Pee Dee

75 cents

BREAST CANCER AWARENESS MONTH

THE SURVIVORS

Lighthouse Ministries shared their experiences

BY SHAMIRA MCCRAY
Morning News
smccray@florencenews.com

FLORENCE — Lighthouse Ministries is composed of individuals who devote their time to helping Florence county residents who are in need.

Among those who serve within the ministry are five breast cancer survivors.

Thelma Hawkins is a volunteer at Lighthouse Ministries, and she said that even though she could not serve for a while because of breast cancer treatments, her fellow staff members at the organization were very supportive.

"I think the fact that you're there to help somebody else, they're there to help you with whatever your problems are because you hear so much from the participants, so you couldn't hear anything worse," Hawkins said.

THE VOLUNTEER

To read about the survivor who helps cancer patients, see Page 4A.

She received a diagnosis of breast cancer after having a mammogram in 2014.

"I had surgery in June, and then I had radiation," Hawkins said. "Because it was just barely stage two, I didn't have to have the chemotherapy."

Hawkins said her case was not dramatic, but it was a well-supported one. Both the gynecologist and surgeon who cared for her were her former students.

"The thing I'd like to tell people is check out what Florence cancer centers can do for you because I've just had the best of care here," Hawkins said. "Now, I don't have one of the aggressive types of cancer, and they're all individual. And there's a good support system."

Hawkins said her cancer is in

See SURVIVORS, Page 4A

THE NURSES

Ins and outs of oncology

McLeod oncology nurses Stacia Andrews (left) and Michelle Beard (right) pose with patient Wanda Williams.

SHAMIRA MCCRAY/MORNING NEWS

Outpatient, inpatient nurses shed light on work experiences

BY SHAMIRA MCCRAY
Morning News
smccray@florencenews.com

FLORENCE — Stacia Andrews said she and other oncology nurses at McLeod Health want to cast a ray of sunshine to make their patients feel better and be encouraged.

As an outpatient oncology nurse, Andrews gets to see patients who have just begun their battle with cancer, and even see many win the battle.

Working as an outpatient oncology nurse can be different from working as an inpatient oncology nurse.

Outpatient

Nearly 15 outpatient nurses work daily at the McLeod Center for Cancer Treatment and Research. Michelle Beard said their shifts are usually from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m., give or take an hour. Two nurses are always scheduled to work later shifts and be on hand until the last patient has finished treatment for the day.

"Usually our patients come in, most of the time they're

See NURSES, Page 5A

MAMMOGRAPHIES

New digital machine improves patient care in Lake City

BY DONNA TRACY
Lake City News & Post
dtracy@florencenews.com

LAKE CITY — More than 60,000 women are expected to get diagnoses of breast cancer in 2015. An additional 2,350 men also will get diagnoses of invasive breast cancer. Those are the most recent statistics reported by the American Cancer Society.

The organization also reports that breast cancer is roughly 100 times more common in women than

THE ONCOLOGISTS

Using teamwork to battle breast cancer

BY JOE PERRY
Morning News
jperry@florencenews.com

FLORENCE — For Dr. James Smith, treating breast cancer is an ever-evolving discipline that's constantly improving.

"The good thing is we have better treatment options," said the 42-year-old Sumter native. "That's the exciting thing about see treatments change from year to year, especially in the area of breast cancer," he said.

These days more targeted and individualized therapies prevail, as dictated by the tumor type or biology of the cancer. Proteins that aid in cancer growth get special attention.

"You can target those proteins and receptors and interrupt abnormal cell division," Smith ex-

Shain: GolfBoards popping up on courses 1B

THE ISLAND PACKET

THURSDAY, October 22, 2015

Hilton Head Island • Bluffton

75 cents

ARMED 'FOR SAFETY'

Hilton Head gated communities say security guards need to have guns, rarely fire their weapons

An armed security officer waves a vehicle through the Greenwood gate into Sea Pines on Wednesday.

JAY KARR • Staff photo

By CAITLIN TURNER • cturner@islandpacket.com • 843-706-8184

After two Hilton Head security guards accidentally fired their guns this year — the most recent incident occurring Oct. 14 when a guard shot himself in the foot — other island gated communities say their guards are also armed, but rarely fire their weapons.

They say the guns are needed for the safety of officers, who are often first-responders to crime scenes in the gated communities.

A Palmetto Dunes security guard accidentally shot himself this month while trying to demonstrate firearms safety to another security officer, according to a Beaufort County Sheriff's Office report. That followed an incident Feb. 20 when a Palmetto Dunes guard accidentally fired her weapon while taking it apart to clean it. The bullet entered a file cabinet; no one was injured, a sheriff's report said.

INCIDENTS

- OCT. 14: A Palmetto Dunes security guard accidentally shot himself while trying to demonstrate firearms safety to another security officer.
- FEB. 20: A Palmetto Dunes guard accidentally fired her weapon while taking it apart to clean it. The bullet entered a file cabinet; no one was injured.

Source: Beaufort County Sheriff's Office reports

Please see ARMED on 11A

County plans on sales tax hit snag

Council finds school district has similar plan

By REBECCA LURYE
rlurye@islandpacket.com
843-706-8155

A new proposal to pay for millions of dollars worth of school improvements could sidetrack Beaufort County Council's plans to hold a referendum for a sales-tax increase.

After three years of attempts to raise the sales tax by 1 percent to pay for infrastructure needs and local projects, council members learned last week that the Beaufort County School District may seek a sales-tax referendum of its own in November 2016.

That news has prompted some council members to favor dropping a county sales-tax hike, worried voters would balk at the prospect of referendums from both the county and school board.

Now, an independent county commission that met for the first time Wednesday is beginning work to develop the county's referendum, but chances are fading that the proposal will make it onto the ballot next year, let alone get voters' backing.

Council members at a finance committee meeting Monday considered putting the commission on hold until they decide whether to pursue a 1 percent sales tax, but they ultimately chose to let the commission's first meeting go forward. On Wednesday, the independent group learned about their responsibilities and elected Mike Sutton of Beaufort as chairman.

But alternatives to a capital projects sales tax remain possible, county officials say.

Please see SNAG on 11A

Getting ready: A behind-the-scenes look at Pat Conroy exhibit in Beaufort

Brian Symmes

Cell: 803-673-9437

Office: 803-734-0304