Happy Thanksgiving to you and yours!

There is plenty to be thankful for, but I am extremely thankful for the opportunity to serve my state – the great state of South Carolina – as well as the best country in the world, America. It is such an honor to serve every one of you in the United States Senate, and I send my thanks and blessings to you and your family today as you come together for a great time over a huge meal.

Thanksgiving, for me, is especially meaningful and significant because it is an opportunity to celebrate the positive things in our lives and serve on behalf of those who are less fortunate.

My primary goal in the U.S. Senate is to affect many Americans with a message of hope and opportunity, and I will continue to work hard to ensure that this happens.

I wish you the very best this Thanksgiving. I am grateful for all of the support I have received from all over the state – your feedback and concerns are valuable to me in doing the best job representing you.

As we enter the holiday season, let's remember what makes this time of the year so special and continue to come together as a state and country as well.

Have a safe, fun and happy Thanksgiving!

God Bless,

Tim
