Sean,
I guess last week was a bad week because most of my list was out of the office. I was able to speak with Shannon Hicks and Cheryl Thompson. I have left messages with the rest and expect calls this week. Venis Manigo has left me a message and would like to make an appointment to meet. This is a really busy week for me so I will probably not finish the interview phase until some time next week.

Shannon Hicks from LLR did share some good ideas. Apparently, state procurement uses an automated system to prepare specifications for bids. She thinks that that system should be made available to all agencies so that there will be more consistency in bid documents, decreasing the number of protests. I am going to investigate that option further with Delbert.

Were you able to get better contact info for your list? I used the state directory to obtain their phone numbers. If you need help, let me know, and I will try to call someone else at the agency to get better contact info.

I will touch base again with you next week.

Thanks,
Marcia

Hey Marcia,

How are your calls going?

Sean
