Fast Facts

Studies show that nearly 60% of colorectal cancer patients are 70 years of age or older, and it's estimated that this number will only continue to rise.

The American Heart Association estimates that nearly 66% of cardiovascular disease deaths occur in people age 75 and older.

Seniors and Kidney Health

Physical well-being is contingent upon the health of all of our organs, and while the areas of focus for seniors may often be the heart and brain, the kidneys are just as important and should demand the same level of care and attention.
