

Groundbreaking For Day Care Centers Today

The Columbia Housing Authority will hold groundbreaking ceremonies for its Gonzales Gardens and Saxon Homes community day care centers today at 9:45 a. m. at the site of the Saxon Homes Center near Drew Park.

Construction of the centers is scheduled to begin July 1. The total construction cost of $515,000 is being financed by two grants from the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

The centers, which will be operated on a nonprofit basis by the Columbia Day Care Project, Inc., will care for the children of working mothers in the communities with fees charged on a sliding scale according to ability to pay.
