South Carolina State Parks

at 17:20:00 on 2/26/2013 UTC

It's a MINK --- I THINK! This mink was spotted from the deck of the Adventure trading ship. Come see more than just history at Charles Towne Landing! Winter camellias blooming, azaleas blooming early.....AND a mink!

Cathy Robbins Are you sure it's not an otter?

at 17:24:12 on 2/26/2013 UTC

Jeanine Gurley Jacildone shhh, don't tell anyone - somebody out there is going to want to go kill it.

at 17:26:26 on 2/26/2013 UTC

Donald Sherman That's no Otter by all means

at 17:26:55 on 2/26/2013 UTC

Dennis Szerszen otter

at 17:36:02 on 2/26/2013 UTC

Chris Ryan Marsh Mink. Too small to be an otter

at 17:44:40 on 2/26/2013 UTC

Mel Smith Monk <http://www.scwildlife.com/pubs/novdec2009/mink.html>

at 17:54:07 on 2/26/2013 UTC

Kelly Gardner Mezzapelle It slinks like a mink.

at 17:57:22 on 2/26/2013 UTC

Cathy Robbins Looks like an otter on my screen, but maybe the one who actually took the video can see it better than I can! It sure looks like the otters around here!

at 17:58:15 on 2/26/2013 UTC

Wes Cooler Tail too short and skinny for an otter. Def a mink.

at 18:19:58 on 2/26/2013 UTC

Shannon Leigh Definitely a mink... it's too small to be an otter and the tail is too short and not heavy enough.

at 18:26:02 on 2/26/2013 UTC

Suzette Urick Very common, textbook typical Marsh Mink - too cute!

at 18:55:08 on 2/26/2013 UTC

Tammy Smith Fink Definitely a mink!

at 19:58:05 on 2/26/2013 UTC

Richard Laurent We have mink at Huntington Beach State Park as well. Our evening kayak tours to the Jetty see them.

at 19:59:43 on 2/26/2013 UTC

Michelle Lonçon-Dawkins thought those were muskrats
at 22:27:43 on 2/26/2013 UTC

Wade Kalinowsky We on the SC coast are covered in mink ! SCDNR studied mink a few years back (Buddy Baker I think ?)and we are not going to run out any time soon. (A common sight along the southern SC coast in the salt marshes)
at 22:53:48 on 2/26/2013 UTC

Jill Coffin Unfortunately they love turtle eggs(:
at 0:10:36 on 2/27/2013 UTC

Terry Lee Ashbaugh Saw it the last time. But it has gotten bigger
at 17:45:44 on 2/27/2013 UTC

Rachael Carpenter Deffinatley looks like a marsh mink to me!
at 19:41:18 on 2/28/2013 UTC

Cheryl W Kirk Looks like what my mom's fur stole was made of!
at 2:43:24 on 3/01/2013 UTC

Sue Ann Tarkenton Super cool. I'm glad you were able to capture it on video.
at 3:29:42 on 3/01/2013 UTC

Boyd A Parrish Yep-I see them from time-to-time around Kentucky and Barkley Lakes,here.....very cool!
at 4:18:37 on 3/01/2013 UTC

Linda McMurtry Thompson To cool ! Lol..
