---

Dear Colleague:

April is now over and National Social Security Month has come to a close.

I want to thank you for helping us spread awareness about our programs and services during this special month. Whether you took part in our Thunderclap synchronized social media event, shared our post and video bites featuring personal finance expert Suze Orman, joined in our live chat with USA.Go encouraged your audiences to take our 5 Steps Toward Your Financial Security — your participation made a difference!

Workers should not look to Social Security as their sole source of retirement income. However, too often it is. With your help, National Social Security Month encouraged workers and their families to develop a sound financial plan that includes Social Security as a foundation — along with other sources of retirement income, like pensions, savings, and investments.

Help us keep the momentum going by continuing to share our ready-to-post educational materials through your networks. Even if you missed your opportunity to participate in National Social Security Month, you'll find materials about Social Security protections and the critical importance of financial planning that you can use to educate your audiences year round.

Thank you for everything you do on behalf of the American people. With your organization's support, Social Security is here to help secure today and tomorrow.
