Subject: The removal of the state flag:

I am sending you this email to express my disgust in how you are handling the situation with calling for the removal of the state flag. You need to ask yourself a series of questions.

#1 - Did this flag shoot and kill the 9 good, sincere people in the church last week?

#2 - Why am I now calling for the removal of the flag when the flag has flown over the state capital for YEARS? There have been racial killings (not as publicized) in my state every year for years. How come people aren't complaining about those killings?

#3 - Am I really calling for removing the flag for good reason? After all it is part of the history of the South and for a certain race to force the history to be removed honestly good for the people? If we can't celebrate our history BUT we can make Kuwanzaa (a particular holiday that wasn't even celebrated here in the US until the last 10 years because no one in the black community had ever even heard of it until then) a National Holiday when it was only celebrated in Africa, what kind of message does that send?

I think you shouldn't make irrational decisions based on emotion. You are caving in to a certain race and it's not right.
