Richele and Rebecca,

I'm just checking to see if the order is ready on the banks. We like to send it out to them once it's done.

Thanks again for all your help.

Neil

Thanks Neil. We did not put a stop date in the Order so it goes for 15 days unless we issue a new Order. We are letting the State of Emergency Order stand for the full 15 days at this time, and it is still good today, so the banks should be fine. I appreciate you keeping us up-to-date and in the loop.

Richele and Rebecca,

Just to tie up the loose ends on this now that things are subsiding - we feel good that the order for the banks can have an end date of October 12, 2016. There may have been a few branches out here and there but for the banks themselves, they were open by then. I assume the start date should be October 5, 2016 – the beginning of the state of emergency and evacuation orders.

Let me know if I've missed something.

Thanks,
Neil

Richele,

The way we followed this before is that banks close as any other business that is subject to the Governor's evacuation order. So we've felt that specifically closing banks by order wasn't really needed. Plus people may need access to banking as they leave – just like they might need a gas station or grocery store. Still we advise our banks that they are subject to the Governor's order if they are in affected counties and that safety of customers and employees come first. Some have already let us know of when they are closing.

As for Monday, we've advised them that although Monday is a federal holiday and a legal banking holiday there is no law says they must be closed. They're simply allowed to do so as a legal holiday. If they are allowed to return per the Governor's order and they wish to open to accommodate customers, they can do so.

It looks like from the projected course of the storm that Oct. 5th through 9th will be the affected days for the purposes of the order we typically do with your office. The 10th will need no order as it is already a legal banking holiday. Looking at the order that was done for the October flood we included Sunday. I don't see any problem doing that this time.

Does this help? I know y'all very busy but I am available if you'd like to talk. Otherwise e-mail is fine.

Neil

Neil -

With the evacuation of various counties, do we have a need to close the banks? I know they are closed Monday and I'm not sure if this further impacts any decisions?

Neil,

Yes, Richele Taylor, Governor's Chief Legal Counsel, and I will be handling these types of requests. Please send your requests to declare state holidays for banks to both of us at the appropriate time so we can prepare draft executive orders.

Thank you,

Rebecca

Rebecca,

I hope you're well.

As you're aware this storm keeps inching closer to the SC coast. I just want to confirm you are still my contact in the governor's office in case we need an order concerning banks that have to close.
