Landsford Canal is widely-known for the lilies that blanket the Catawba each May/June. However, the park was named for the canal that was once located there. Here's a photo of the well-preserved remains of the canal system that made the river commercially navigable from 1820 to 1835. Thanks for the photo, JPKarner Photography!

Tammie Denski Couture Been there. It is really interesting to see the canals. I went during a Spider Lilly festival, I strongly recommend the festival.
