Subject: Welcome Regan Bailey as Litigation Director

Last week we were thrilled to welcome Regan Baily as our new Litigation Director. Regan is based in our Washington, DC office, where she'll lead our impact litigation. Regan will continue Justice in Aging's 45 year history of litigating high impact, precedent-setting cases that benefit hundreds of thousands of seniors and return and preserve millions of dollars in benefits.

As the safety net upon which seniors rely comes under attack, our ability to fight for the rights of low-income older adults through litigation is more important than ever. The courts will be an even more important tool to ameliorate and prevent poverty among older Americans, and to ensure that the safety net is available to all without discrimination.

Regan joins Justice in Aging after serving for the past five years at the US Department of Justice, Civil Rights Division in the Special Litigation Section as a Trial Attorney. Prior to joining the Department of Justice, Regan directed legal advocacy for Disability Rights Washington. Previously she served as the Assistant Director for Public Benefits and Economic Stability at Maryland Legal Aid Bureau, a Senior Attorney at University Legal Services, and a Managing Attorney at West Virginia Advocates. She was a Writ Clerk for the Supreme Court of Appeals of West Virginia and was also a Staff Attorney for DNA People's Legal Services for the Navajo Nation.

Regan received a Bachelor of Arts from American University in Washington, DC and a JD from District of Columbia School of Law. You can read more about her on our staff page.

Please join us in welcoming Regan to the team!
