Male painted buntings, one of the world's most colorful songbirds, have arrived at Huntington Beach!

They can be easily seen at the Nature Center's bird feeders. You may be able to attract buntings to your home feeder, if you live in the right habitat. They are found mostly in the coastal plain, especially near salt marshes and maritime forests. They prefer plain white millet, hold the filler please! Come see us....and them: www.southcarolinaparks.com/huntingtonbeach
