Gov. Nikki Haley said today her trade mission trip to India has been "very productive" and that she sees an opportunity for university exchanges, including with Clemson. Speaking from Mumbai, on the second day of her stay in that Indian city, Haley said there were several areas of interest by Indians in Clemson.

Note: "Interest in Clemson was definitely in the automotive research side and then also in the agricultural side, not to mention engineering," she said. Haley said Indians also are interested in the University of South Carolina and its lauded international business program.

Note: "Without question I know we will be closing jobs over the next several months," she said. "I know the relationships and the meetings we have had have been very strong."

Note: "It was hard for me to anticipate exactly how it would go but it really has been amazing how many people know about our progress in South Carolina and know about our story. We have been very well received. They are very interested. They want to know more."

Gov. Nikki Haley says she's confident her trip to India will lead to job announcements in South Carolina. Haley talked to reporters Wednesday via teleconference from Mumbai. The state's 10-day economic development trip concludes Friday.

Note: But Haley says it's also been an emotional trip for her personally. She had no memories of her last visit to India at age 2 and says it's been overwhelming to see places her parents talked about.

Pitching for a two-way investment flow between South Carolina and Maharashtra, Indian-American Governor of the South Carolina, Nikki Haley, believes Prime Minister Narendra Modi is doing for India today what South Carolina has already achieved.

Note: She says: "I think what Modi is doing here, we've done in South Carolina. It's a proven model, it works and Modi is definitely a man of action."

Note: Calling herself as an "aggressive governor", Haley said, "We have cut regulations, have cut taxes. We do not have labour unions and we have created an environment that is completely focused on industry." And this is exactly what she expects the NDA government to do in India as well if Modi wants to woo investors. In fact she is sure that not investing in India would be a 'missed opportunity.'

Press Trust of India: Global players seek predictability in laws, regulations: South Carolina governor Nikki Haley

http://economictimes.indiatimes.com/articleshow/45207860.cms?utm_source=contentofinterest&utm_medium=text&utm_campaign=cppst

Indian-origin South Carolina governor Nikki Haley today said that the Centre needs to ensure predictability in its laws so as to create a strong business environment and attract foreign investors.

Note: "The government should make sure that business environment is strong by reducing regulations and taxes, and by making sure that ease to do business improves. More importantly, predictability and trust in laws and regulations is a must," Haley told reporters here.

Note: "A company that wants to come and do business needs predictability; they should know exactly what to expect from the government in terms of rules and predictability that the rules are not going to change in future," Haley said.

Press Trust of India: Alok Ind to raise Rs 2,000 cr via land sale in two years
