Hey Davey, this is Clay I'm using my Clemson email. As a part of the advanced business writing class at Clemson, we have a semester long project where we provide support in many ways to the Anderson Adult Ed program. One of the groups in my class is writing a book for the students that are learning to read to use (simple reading books that relate to adults are hard to find). We would like for Governor Haley to write a short encouraging note to print in the beginning of the book. Something to encourage the students to keep working hard and that this education will make them valuable assets in the workplace. A printed or electronic copy would work, we would like a picture of Governor Haley to post with the note and a printed signature at the bottom so it looks like an actual letter in the book. Thank you again for your help with this, I'll talk to you soon!
