Dear Honorable and Sagacious Governor Nikki Haley,

Your state's share of the nation's 18 trillion dollar debt is $272,801,000,000. How does that compare with South Carolina's yearly budget? What are you willing to do about that? What are you willing to do to prepare your state for the natural fallout from the country's debt? Are you willing to support a constitutional convention of the states?

I have sent you, and all other governors, this book--"The Declaration of Transformation: Grounds for Immediate Constitutional Change"--to convince you that a convention must be held. I hope you will read it, and as a result from reading it, transform your state into an active participant in transforming the nation government into a fiscally responsible entity.

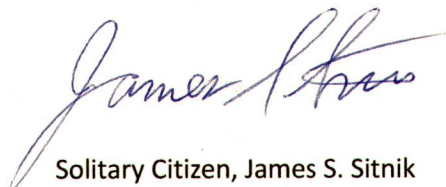

If this book convinces you that a constitutional convention should be held, here are some actions you should consider taking:

- Begin a search for and recruit a "founding father" class of person to represent your state at the convention.
- Help coordinate and organize the convention with the governors of other states.
- Coordinate with your state legislature to prepare for emergency economic conditions such as the destruction of the currency by hyper-inflation. (This may mean preparing to create your own state's currency for when the situation arises.)

I close this letter to you with a quote from the Anti-Federalist's Papers:

"I wish for nothing more than a good government and a constitution under which our liberties would be perfectly safe." AMICUS, Anti-Federalist #53

Sincerely,

Solitary Citizen, James S. Sitnik
