Long-term Services and Supports Webinar

Long-Term Services and Supports (LTSS) is one of the four main focus areas of the 2015 White House Conference on Aging (WHCOA), which is scheduled for July 13. In advance of this once-per-decade event, The Gerontological Society of America (GSA) is convening a free webinar that will look to the lessons of the Federal Commission on Long-Term Care and the innovations of the aging services network to frame the future for person-centered LTSS. Titled "New Visions for Long-term Services and Supports: The Aging Network & the White House Conference on Aging," it will take place from 2 to 3 p.m. EST on June 25. Advance registration is required. The online session will be moderated by GSA Policy Advisor Brian W. Lindberg, MMHS, and feature Nora Super, MPA, executive director of the WHCOA; Larry Atkins, PhD, executive director of the Long-Term Quality Alliance and president of the National Academy of Social Insurance; and Amy Gotwals, chief of public policy & external affairs at the National Association of Area Agencies on Aging.
