Dear Senator Verdin:

Brenda Grigsbee is now a middle-aged female who is blind. I am writing to you because, in addition to being blind, she has an extremely rare medical disorder called familial multiple coagulation factor deficiencies due to an abnormality in the vitamin K enzyme cycle. I diagnosed Mrs. Grigsbee when she was a baby, and she was the first reported case of a deficiency of clotting factors prothrombin, factors VII, IX, X, as well as proteins C and S. She is homozygous for this disorder since both of her parents had low excretions of a substance called gamma-carboxyglutamic acid in their urine. Even though her parents were normal, Mrs. Grigsbee was affected. Fortunately, we found that Mrs. Grigsbee would respond to high oral doses of vitamin K<sub>1</sub>. Deficiency of all the clotting factors mentioned above will result in this patient having a very, very severe bleeding disorder to the extent that she could easily die. Fortunately, however, the administration of oral vitamin K in high doses on a daily basis will keep her clotting times within a therapeutic range; that is, they will not be completely normalized but they will be sufficiently shortened so that bleeding will be unlikely except in cases of trauma or surgery, at which time she will be given replacement therapy with plasma or blood transfusions. It is absolutely essential for this patient's life that she receive vitamin K daily.

Even though vitamin K is easily obtainable, for some reason her private insurance companies have refused to pay for this woman's vitamin K. Their refusal to pay for vitamin K for this rare disease is quite a surprise to me, and I hope that you will be able to help this woman get her vitamin K paid for by a government agency.

In addition to having multiple clotting factor deficiency syndrome, probably due to vitamin K epoxide deficiency in the liver, this patient also has retinoblastoma such that she is now completely blind. Her husband is a truck driver and has provided as well as he could for the family and the children. They are a good family, and Mrs. Griggsbee has been extremely cooperative in allowing us to study her blood, and through her collaboration she has advanced medical science and our knowledge of how vitamin K is necessary for the manufacture of clotting factors, many of which are vitamin K-dependent.

Mrs. Griggsbee tells me that she is unable to afford the oral vitamin K that keeps her alive. She has repeatedly requested help from the Medicaid/Medicare agencies for vitamin K, but unfortunately she has been repeatedly refused. She called me in desperation, and I am writing to you to see if you cannot help her in some way to get some help so that vitamin K can be provided for her on a daily basis. I sincerely hope that you understand the absolute necessity for this type of therapy for this woman. Vitamin K is not hard to find, but it is expensive and it will keep her clotting times sufficiently short to keep her from bleeding to death under usual, everyday living circumstances.

If I can be of further assistance, please don't hesitate to call upon me. With Mrs. Griggsbee's permission, we would be glad to furnish you with her records. As I stated previously, I diagnosed her when she was just a few months old, and she has been living with this for all of her life and has turned out to be a very nice tax-paying citizen with a fine family and a fine husband, who are currently having a very hard time making ends meet.

Sincerely yours,
