Milk and milk products are the best sources for calcium and other nutrients. Not only does milk keep bones healthy and make the heart strong, but it also contributes to a sound body. Recent evidence has also shown that milk consumption plays a role in helping control weight. According to the Journal of the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology, a diet high in low-fat dairy causes fat cells to make less fat and turns on the machinery to break down fat. This translates into lower risks for obesity.

In addition, low-fat dairy products help control high blood pressure counts due to a new eating plan, Dietary Approaches to Stop Hypertension (DASH). This plan encourages a diet of three low-fat dairy products and eight to ten fruits and vegetables daily. A Harvard study preformed in 1997 showed that the DASH diet could reduce blood pressure, even as effectively as some medicines.

If you’re like me, the best way to celebrate June Dairy Month and Father’s Day is a big bowl of homemade peach cobbler topped with a scoop or two of vanilla ice cream and a glass of cold milk. What an enjoyable way to cool off, stay healthy, and support the dairy industry at the same time!
