

From: Symmes, Brian <BrianSymmes@gov.sc.gov>

To:

Date: 11/17/2015 5:02:09 PM

Subject: SC Front Pages – Tuesday, November 17, 2015

SC Front Pages – Tuesday, November 17, 2015

The Post and Courier

FOUNDED 1803 •

WINNER OF THE 2015 PULITZER PRIZE FOR PUBLIC SERVICE

Tuesday, November 16, 2016

POSTANDCOURIER.COM

Charleston, S.C. $100

Financial chief for schools resigns

Decision comes amid scrutiny of Charleston County district's budget

BY DEANNA FAN
and RALPH ROYERS
cprj.com/charleston.com
fan@postandcourier.com

Charleston County School District's Chief Financial Officer Michael Bobby Box resigned after being made available over an $18 million budget shortfall. Meanwhile, some school board members say district employees have been providing inaccurate estimates during the budgeting process and keeping the board in the dark about unauthorized spending at least five years.

In September, district officials revealed that they had overspent the 2014-15 budget by $18,750,850 — primarily in salaries and benefits — and in medical and local property tax revenue. In an $18 million deficit, or roughly 4 percent of the $467 million general operating budget.

The district also has an anticipated

$4 million shortfall in the current fiscal year based on new revenue projections.

"Staff have manipulated the numbers to keep the board from seeing the budget, and it's not just the financial office, it's systemic," said board member Todd Garrett, who sits on the audit and finance committee.

Eleven district employees included "unrealistic assumptions" in the budgeting process, including underestimating the costs of salary and benefits. Garrett said he could not specifically say who provided the bad data or approved the additional spending.

When asked who had approved the $8.75 million in unbudgeted spending, Board Chairman Candy Bobba Goss said, "We have that same question." She said the board expects to know more once an internal audit is completed next week.

Please see BOX, Page A3

Haley would reject refugees from Syria

Cites 'primary duty to ensure safety of citizens' of S.C.

A Syrian man kisses his daughter shortly after disembarking from a dinghy at a beach on the Greek island of Leros, after crossing the Aegean sea from the Turkish coast Monday. The civil war in Syria and the Islamic State takeover of large areas in Syria and Iraq have driven millions to flee their homes to seek refuge in Europe.

BY GAVIN MCKEEON and CYNTHIA BOUDAN
cprj.com/charleston.com
coudan@postandcourier.com

COLUMBIA — Gov. Nikki Haley isn't ready to close South Carolina's borders to refugees, she has told two Syrian men coming to the state after the terrorist attacks in Paris last weekend that killed 129 and injured hundreds.

"As governor, it is my first and primary duty to ensure the safety of the citizens of South Carolina," Haley said in a written letter to Secretary of State John Kerr. "While I agree that the United States should try to assist individuals in such situations, it is precisely because of the safety of the citizens of South Carolina," Haley said in a written letter to Secretary of State John Kerr. "While I agree that the United States should try to assist individuals in such situations, it is precisely because of the safety of the citizens of South Carolina."

Haley joined a growing number of mostly Republican governors in saying they would refuse to allow Syrian refugees into their states if the Obama administration goes through with its plan to let 10,000 into the

Inside

Civilian kills refugee figure, seeks unity to bomb. Page A3

Sept. 11th-era fees create issues in U.S. as refugees flee from Syria. Page A8

Attack may renew encryption debate among tech firms. Page B1

COUNTRY

Haley has in the past supported faith-based groups — Lutheran Family Services in Columbia and Worldwide Ministries — that have resettled refugees in South Carolina, including Christians facing religious persecution in their homelands.

There are no Syrian refugees currently in South Carolina, she said.

Please see REFUGEES, Page A8

Taking a closer look at the refugee dilemma

BY JEFF KASPER and
ALYCIA A. CALDWELL
cprj.com/charleston.com

DETROIT — Several U.S. governors have threatened to stop accepting refugees following last week's attack in Paris, even as experts counter they lack legal authority to do so.

Meanwhile, President Barack Obama, whose administration recently pledged to accept about 80,000 Syrian refugees, argued Monday that the United States needs to allow them because many are fleeing terrorism.

Some state leaders disagree with Obama's assertion that the country can simultaneously welcome refugees seeking safety and ensure national security. Several have called for a complete ban on resettlement, others for temporary limits and a few to require information from federal officials on the vetting process.

The Homeland Security Department says refugees face the highest level of screening of anybody entering the U.S., but officials will work to allay other concerns.

Meanwhile, President Barack Obama, whose administration recently pledged to accept about 80,000 Syrian refugees, argued Monday that the United States needs to allow them because many are fleeing terrorism.

Some state leaders disagree with Obama's assertion that the country can simultaneously welcome refugees seeking safety and ensure national security. Several have called for a complete ban on resettlement, others for temporary limits and a few to require information from federal officials on the vetting process.

The Homeland Security Department says refugees face the highest level of screening of anybody entering the U.S., but officials will work to allay other concerns.

Please see STATES, Page A8

Q&A

Some state leaders disagree with Obama's assertion that the country can simultaneously welcome refugees seeking safety and ensure national security. Several have called for a complete ban on resettlement, others for temporary limits and a few to require information from federal officials on the vetting process.

The Homeland Security Department says refugees face the highest level of screening of anybody entering the U.S., but officials will work to allay other concerns.

Please see STATES, Page A8

New S.C. health care headaches expected

Obamacare options
fewer, prices to go up

BY LAUREN SALISBURY
lsalisbury@postandcourier.com

Carly Simonson paid $54 a month in 2014 and $114 a month this year for an Obamacare insurance policy to cover her family of three in Summerville.

Next year, starting December 2015, Carly, 63-year-old Simonson wonders if she'll be able to afford health insurance at all. "I might just have to drop myself off completely and not have any coverage," she said.

With decisions on enrollment for Affordable Care Act customers, Open Enrollment for public health plans on HealthCare.gov started this month and runs through Jan. 31, but shopping for coverage can start as early as Oct. 1. Carly picked a plan by mid-December. In South Carolina, there're facing higher prices, fewer options and narrower networks.

Please see HEALTH, Page A5

Poll

Are you shopping for an Affordable Care Act policy? Go to postandcourier.com/polls to vote.

Charleston, Mt. Pleasant to vote today

Mayor, council seals
at stake in runoff

BY ROBERT BEIJER
rbeijer@postandcourier.com

Charleston voters will pick a new mayor and two City Council members Tuesday, while voters in Mount Pleasant also will choose two Town Council members.

All four contests are runoff races, unfinished business from the Lowcountry's Nov. 8 municipal elections.

The most visible — and expensive — race is the one for the Charleston mayor's job. Voters will choose between Rep. Leon Lyles and businessman John Tecklenborg, both of whom finished in a tie in the city's May 10th runoff race two weeks ago.

Please see ELECTION, Page A5

Inside

SPORTS

Tigers' Deshawn Watson takes Hohmann race in stride. C1

STATE

Colbert, Rucker among those to help raise funds for S.C.'s neediest flood victims. A5

Partly sunny:
High 76, Low 64;
Complete 5-day forecast: B10

Bridge B9
Business B11
Gardens C5
Gates D9

Healthcare D19
Edisto F30
Merlin D2
Revere D18
Obituary D4
Pet Health D11

Charleston
Deals Today

Gracie and Lucy Show
Multi-price tickets for Nov. 28
See A2

CLEMSON FOOTBALL, 1C
COMPARING COACHES

LIFESTYLE, 1D
Transplant patients supported

The Greenville News

A GANNETT COMPANY

TUESDAY,
NOVEMBER 17, 2015
GREENVILLEONLINE.COM

USA TODAY

FEDS REJECT ISLAMIC STATE'S WARNING OF U.S. ATTACK

PAGE 1B

USC students stage walkout

About 150 students walked out of class at the University of South Carolina, protesting alleged inequalities on Monday.

About 150 leave classes at the campus in Columbia to protest lack of policy changes to promote equality

NATHANIEL CARY
nccary@greenvillenews.com

A group of students at the University of South Carolina staged a walkout of classes at 11 a.m. Monday at the university's Columbia campus to protest what they call a lack of policy changes to promote equality.

The group, which posted a list of demands on Change.org addressed to USC President Harris Pastides, signed the petition 2020 Visionaries. About 150 students joined the walk, which started at the Longstreet Theatre and ended at the Osborne Administration Building in the Horseshoe.

There, they met with university officials and presented a list of grievances and demands for change.

"We appreciate our students mak-

"The issues they have raised will do much to guide the conversation."

WES HICKMAN
USC SPEECHER/PIN

ing their voice heard, participating in civil discourse and continuing the dialogue towards making our campus a safe and welcoming environment for all students," said Wes Hickman, USC spokesman. "The issues they have raised will do much to guide the con-

See WALKOUT, Page 4A

USC public affairs major Aaron Greene asks questions of the school's administration Monday.

Haley asks feds to not send Syrian refugees

Letter to Kerry questions ability to thoroughly vet

RON BARNETT
RBARNETT@GRENVILLENEWS.COM

Gov. Nikki Haley sent a letter to Secretary of State John Kerry on Monday saying she questions the ability of federal agents to thoroughly vet Syrian refugees.

"Therefore, until I can be assured that all potential refugees from Syria have ties to terrorist organizations, I am requesting that the State Department not resettle any Syrian refugees in South Carolina," wrote Haley, who has been supportive of refugee resettlement in the state.

Haley was one of more than a dozen Republican governors who made such pronouncements Monday.

In the aftermath of the deadly terrorist attacks in Paris last week, and questions over the possibility of one of the attackers having entered France as a Syrian refugee, several legislators sent letters to the governor urging her to push back against efforts to relocate Syrians in South Carolina.

The two resettlement agencies operating in the state have said they are not approved to receive Syrians, although one of them, in Columbia, said that could change before the end of 2016.

A Haley spokesman has said the governor can't prevent refugees from being resettled through federally approved agencies.

"The international Islamic terrorist organization the Islamic State has openly bragged that they have an ongoing operation to insert trained terrorists into Western democracies by mixing them with the hordes of refugees coming out of the war-torn Middle East and North Africa," Sen. Lee Bright and Reps. Mike Burns and Bill Chumley of Greenville and Spartanburg counties wrote in a letter to the governor Monday.

"We hope you will agree that we can no longer continue to ignore the threat to our country posed by these radicals," they added. "While we can never expect President Barack Obama to alter his leftist ideological strategy, the state of South Carolina must

See REFUGEES, Page 7A

Panel selects two for Supreme Court, deadlocks on third

John Cannon Few chosen; Greenville's Aphrodite Kouduros another possible choice

TIM SMITH
THE GREENVILLE NEWS

COLUMBIA — A state judicial screening committee has chosen two judges to fill a Supreme Court seat left open by the retirement of Justice Charles Deneen.

wright Monday to try and find a solution.

Earlier it chose John Cannon Few of Greenville, chief judge of the State Court of Appeals, and Ralph King the appellate court, and Appeals Court Judge H. Bruce Williams of Columbia. The panel went behind closed doors for an executive session.

Behind the scenes of USC recruiting as coaching change looms, 1B

Big stats help Clemson's Watson attract attention of Heisman voters, 1B

TUESDAY NOVEMBER 17 2015

$1.00

YESTERDAY 7/11
STAY CONNECTED THESTATE.COM

FACEBOOK.COM/THESTATENEWS
TWITTER.COM/THESATE

TONIGHT: PARTLY SUNNY 60° 80°
YESTERDAY: 60° 80° FORECAST: 60° 80°
FORECAST: 60° 80°

The State

Cartoonist Robert Ano's view on the terrorist attack in Paris

OPINION

- GOP's Cruz says Muslim refugees should be relocated within Middle East, 2A
- Q&A: How Syrian refugees are vetted for entry to America, 4E
- US agrees to boost intelligence sharing with Iran, 5A
- Midlands officials urge vigilance on public safety, 5E

Lawmakers ask Haley to reject refugees

Knee-jerk response 'not who we are as the American people,' lawmaker and National Guard member says

Haley asks U.S. State Department not to send Syrian refugees to South Carolina

BY JAMES WELCH AND CLARENCE HOPKINS
jewel@state.com

More than a dozen S.C. lawmakers Monday called on Gov. Nikki Haley to block international refugees from coming to South Carolina.

The calls came after attacks that killed more than 120 people in Paris over the weekend, renewing fears of terrorists coming to the United States while posing as refugees.

Haley has backed the efforts of faith groups in Spartanburg to resettle refugees in South Carolina. However, late Monday, Haley asked the U.S. State Department not to resettle any Syrian refugees in South Carolina, citing the difficulty of checking their backgrounds.

State Senate Majority Leader Harvey Peeler, R-Columbia, wrote to the governor, saying, "With the bombings and shootings in Paris this weekend, we need to be even more vigilant about protecting the state of South Carolina and her citizens. We do not want potential terrorists in our state."

State Sen. Lee Bright, R-Spartanburg, Rep. Bill Chumley,

SEE S.C. REFUGEES, 5A

UNIVERSITY OF SOUTH CAROLINA PROTEST

A walkout for diversity

About 150 students walked out of class Monday with the USC 2020 Vision group protesting alleged inequities on campus.

Student group's demands include investigation of three administrators, more money for multicultural student affairs office

BUSINESS NO MORE GOLD'S GYM IN MIDLANDS

The five Gold's Gym locations in the Midlands will become part of a group of fitness centers. 5B

USC ATHLETICS FREE ADVICE FOR RAY TANNER

Longtime NFL executive and football consultant has some tips for South Carolina AD in his search for a new football coach. 1B

HUNGER GAMES' FRANCHISE FRIENDSHIP GOES BEYOND FILM

Fridays release of final film

BY ANDREW SATCHE
andrewsatche.com

AT THESTATE.COM See video and more photos from Monday's protest.

A group of mostly Black University of South Carolina students gathered Monday — outside a theater named after a former president of the college who defended slavery — to begin a march to tell the current president that they want more attention paid to diversity on campus.

Dressed in black, the protesters marched silently, hand-in-hand, locked in arms from the Longstreet Theatre through the Horseshoe to USC's administrative building. There, they presented 12 demands to three university administrators.

"The future of USC is in your hands," said Clarie Handall, a biology/psychology major from Greenville who handed the list to administrators.

The group, known as USC 2020 Vision, asked when school leaders would meet their demands, including expanded minority student and faculty recruitment efforts.

USC president Joan Gabel, standing next to chief diversity

SEE USC, 7A

EXCLUSIVE

TUESDAY, November 12, 2015

Refugee opposition grows • 12A

Aiken Standard

YOUR LOCAL NEWS SOURCE SINCE 1867

ATKENSTANDARD.COM

Retired Aiken teacher debuts first book • 1C

Vol. 149, No. 321 Aiken, S.C. ★★ 75¢

Aiken GOP: No refugees in S.C.

BY DAN BROWN
dbrown@aikenstandard.com

The head of the Aiken County Republican Party will introduce a resolution Tuesday night asking Aiken County Council to reject all potential United Nations resettlement funds designated for Syrian refugees to come to Aiken County.

The request follows Friday night's terror attacks in Paris that left more than 120 people dead and hundreds wounded.

The request comes out of the fact that because one of the suicide bombers in the Paris attacks reportedly entered Europe with Syrian refugees, others could, too.

President Barack Obama's administration has said it will take in 10,000 Syrian refugees within the next year.

"We're asking County Council in the resolution to reject all refugee funding for the Syrian refugees in the wake of the Paris attacks," said K.T. Rutherford, the chairman of the Aiken GOP.

"With the proximity of the Savannah River State Aiken, this becomes a matter of national security."

INSIDE
Experts say states lack legal authority to block refugees. 9A

South Carolina Sen. Tim Young, R-Aiken, also joined the call in a statement to Gov. Nikki Haley on Monday urging her not to accept refugee funding to accept Syrians in the wake of the Paris attacks.

"My understanding is that there currently is not a way to adequately and safely examine refugees coming to the United States and potentially relocating in South Carolina," Young wrote. "I ask that you take this step to protect South Carolinians and our citizens' safety in view of what we know at this time and in light of what happened in Paris this past Friday."

S.C. House Rep. Craig Corley, R-Greenerville, also issued his own letter to Haley, encouraging her to "take a stand against the Syrian refugees being placed in the state of South Carolina."

"As governor, your first and most sacred duty

Please see REFUGEE Page 12A

Caught in crossfire

Aiken native a witness to massacres in Paris streets

BY DAN BROWN
dbrown@aikenstandard.com

Paris Cameron had always dreamed of living in Paris.

The 20-year-old Aiken native calls the "City of Light" and her favorite city in the entire world. Currently a student in Paris at Paris Lausanne, her desire is to live there and become an English teacher one day.

On Friday, Nov. 13, around 9 p.m. local time, Cameron found herself caught in the crossfire of the terrorist attacks that killed more than 120 people and wounded hundreds more.

What began as an evening out with friends turned deadly and frightening. "I was heading out for the night with friends, and the 11th district where the shooting happened is a place where everybody goes if they want to eat or grab a drink, see a concert," she said.

They had just arrived on the street where her friend's second-floor apartment was located when they began hearing what they thought were firecrackers.

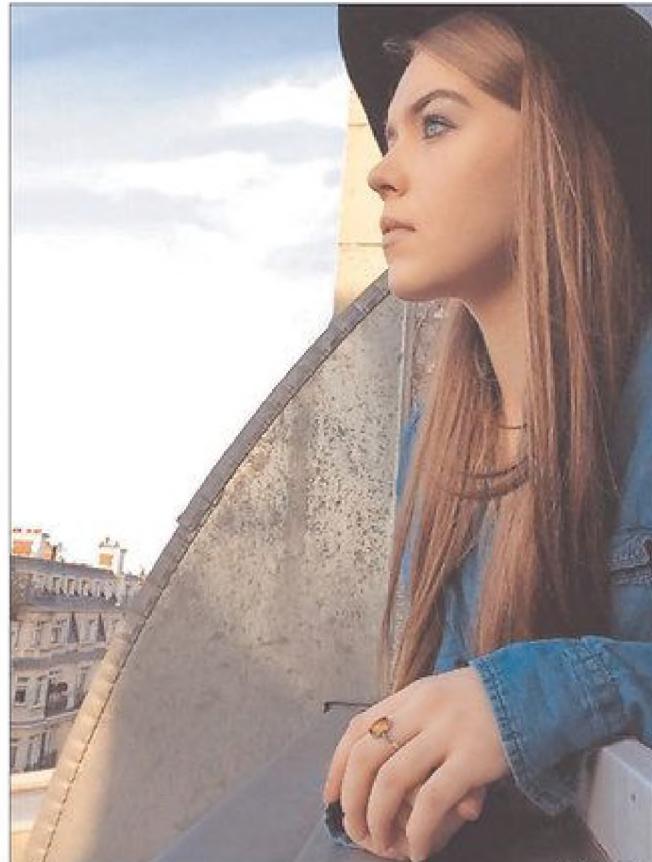

"There were fireworks and then explosions followed," she said. "We didn't know what was happening, but these fireworks and explosions kept going off. We looked outside the apartment, and we saw people running. It looked like a scene out of a horror movie."

Though located in the heart of the action, with the tragedy playing out literally at her feet, Cameron and her friends had no clue what events were transpiring as there was little information being sent out from local news due to the ongoing manhunt with the terrorists at large.

"We turned the news on straight-away," she said. "But we all started getting emails from friends and family from home. This is how we first found out something horrible was happening outside. We didn't know what was going on, even though it was happening right across the street."

An email from her mother, Melannie, rebuked the news; Cameron and her friends were suddenly afraid for their lives.

"My mom was physically sick when she read those news," she said.

SUBMITTED PHOTO
Aiken native Paris Cameron looks out over the city that shares her name in the wake of Friday's attacks that killed more than 120 people.

SUBMITTED PHOTOS

SUBMITTED PHOTOS

AP PHOTO/JACQUES BRINON

The French flag waves at the Elysee Palace in Paris on Sunday as French President Francois Hollande vowed to attack the Islamic State group without mercy as the jihadist group admitted responsibility Saturday for orchestrating the deadliest attacks inflicted on France since World War II.

France seeking unity to bomb IS

BY GREG KELLER AND RAF CASPER
Associated Press

PARIS — France identified a 27-year-old Belgian who once boasted about killing "infidels" and fought for the Islamic State group in Syria as the mastermind of the Paris attacks, and President Francois Hollande vowed Monday to forge a united coalition capable of defeating the jihadists at home and abroad.

Addressing lawmakers after France observed a minute of silence honoring the 129 people killed and 350 wounded, Hollande said the violent came from at least 19 countries, and the international community, led by the United States and Russia, must overcome their deep-seated divisions over Syria in defeating Islamic State on its home turf.

"Friday's acts of war were decided and planned in Syria. They were organized in Belgium and perpetrated on our soil with French complicity with one specific goal: to sow fear and to divide us," Hollande told Parliament in a rare joint session convened at the Palace of Versailles.

"Syria has become the biggest factory of terrorism the world over, and we must stop it," he added.

SPORTS: Watson becoming Heisman hopeful, 1B

INDEX-JOURNAL

VOL. 67, NO. 286

 indexjournal.com

2 SECTIONS, 16 PAGES

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 17, 2015

DAILY 75¢, SUNDAY $1.50

KETTLE TIME

May. Cedric McClure, of The Salvation Army, delivers a kettle to Kmart on Monday. McClure delivered kettles to 22 locations around Abbeville, Greenwood and Laurens counties days before the annual fundraising drive begins.

Salvation Army getting ready for holiday fundraiser

By MARY KATE McGOWAN
mkgowan@indojournal.com

As Thanksgiving approaches, a holiday tradition is gearing up. The bells are about to ring.

Maj. Cedric McClure, of The Salvation Army, is setting up its annual kettle drive at 22 locations in Abbeville, Greenwood and Laurens counties.

McClure said he prefers to set up the kettle stands about a week, or 10 days will not stop, except on Sundays, until Christ mass Eve.

McClure said it is "quite an undertaking" to make sure the kettle ringers are where they need to be in order to reach the campaign's net goal of $160,000.

During the ringing season from Monday to Saturday, about 80 volunteers from civic and religious groups and families along with employees from The Salvation Army will ring their bells by store entrances to raise money for the majority of the organization's

WHERE ARE THEY?

The Salvation Army kettle locations, In Greenwood:

- Wal-Mart at 133 Ph. S., Main St.
- Wal-Mart at 1014 Bluffton Ave.
- K-mart
- D&D
- JC Penny
- Wal-Mart at 300 US-25
- Wal-Mart at 500 SC-72
- Big Lots
- Hobby Lobby
- Best at 712 Bypass 25 NE

GREENWOOD CITY COUNCIL Greenwood City Council approved first reading 5-2 of the 2016 budget Monday night, which comes with a 7.99-mil increase. Councilmen Ronnie Ables and Johnny Williams, left, voted against it.

Council at odds

City tax hike survives, 5-2, at first reading

By COLIN RIDDLE
criddle@indojournal.com

City Council took their first vote on next year's budget Monday with a 5-2 vote sending it to a second reading.

The $15 million budget comes with a 7.99-mil increase in order to provide a 2 percent cost of living adjustment for city employees along with some targeted wage increases in public works and sanitation, bringing all employees at or above $10 per hour. The millage increase also offsets an increase in the cost of health insurance for employees.

The hike, which would take effect on next year's tax bill, represents the maximum increase allowed in Greenwood under state law. The city's last millage increase, which was passed two years ago, was 5 mils.

Councilmen Ronnie Ables and Johnny Williams voted against the measure, citing the millage increase for their votes.

"I just don't believe people can afford it. 7.99 mils is a big step," Ables said.

The increase equates to a $32 increase on a $100,000 owner-occupied home, which would be $38.76 for the average homeowner. For rental property, the average increase would be $24.65.

City Manager Charlie Barrineau said the only other way to

See TAX, page 4A

JOHNNY WILLIAMS

RONNIE ABLES

Haley still supports giving refuge to persecuted immigrants

By SEANNA ADCOX
Associated Press

Related

■ Cebana stands fast on allowing Syrians to resettle in U.S. despite outcry: 7A

to Haley

A similar letter signed by 13 House Republicans called it "unquestionably clear that these terrorists will execute

Republicans in the House

OFFICIALS WORK TO FIX WATER MAIN BREAK

UPSTATE, C1

SMC PULLS AWAY FROM CATAWBA VALLEY

SPORTS, B1

Herald-Journal

SPARTANBURG, SOUTH CAROLINA

Tuesday, November 17, 2015

GoUpstate.com

75¢

GoUpstate

@GoUpstate

NEWS DIGEST

Polls open today

Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. today for a runoff election for a Spartanburg commissioner of public works position. Stephanie Burton, an attorney, and Angela Viney, director of Upstate Forever's Spartanburg office, will face off today after winning the most votes in a four-person race on Nov. 3. Mailed absentee ballots must be physically received by the elections office no later than 7 p.m. today. See a precinct list on page C2.

UPSTATE

Behavioral health focus area chosen for $25K

Spartanburg County has selected its behavioral health focus area to receive $25,000 that was recently awarded through the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation 2015 Culture of Health Prize. C1

USC students call for more diversity

A group of mostly black University of South Carolina students gathered Monday — outside a theater named after a former president of the college who defended slavery — to begin a march to tell the current president that they want more attention paid to diversity on campus. C1

BUSINESS

Energy stocks lead rally

U.S. stocks mounted a broad rally on Monday, snapping a three-day losing streak as

SYRIAN RESETTLEMENT

Haley seeks to block refugees

Governor contacts Secretary of State

By Daniel J. Gross
and Chris Lavender
Staff writers

South Carolina Gov. Nikki Haley, after requests from lawmakers, has asked the federal government not to send any Syrian refugees to South Carolina.

Haley

Haley sent a letter to Secretary of State John Kerry stating that "... until I can be assured that all potential refugees from Syria have no ties to terrorist organizations, I am requesting that the State Department not resettle any Syrian refugees in South Carolina."

Haley stated in the letter that it is her "first and primary duty to ensure the safety of the citizens of South Carolina," and she believes it is "impossible" for federal officials to "thoroughly vet" those fleeing Syria.

In the wake of terrorist attacks in Paris, several senators and representatives in the Upstate called on Haley to stop a refugee resettlement program that is already underway.

According to media reports, authorities discovered that one of the bombers in the Paris

SEE HALEY, A6

GLOBAL TERRORISM MASSACRE IN PARIS

People walk and take pictures in front of the Eiffel Tower — illuminated in the French colors in honor of the victims of the attacks on Friday in Paris — on Monday. France is urging its European partners to move swiftly to boost intelligence sharing, fight arms trafficking and terror financing, and strengthen border security in the wake of the Paris attacks. DANIEL OCHOA DE OLZA/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

France IDs top attacks figure, seeks unity to bomb Islamic State

By Greg Keller
and Raf Casert
The Associated Press

PARIS — France identified a 27-year-old Belgian who once boasted about killing "infidels" and fought for the Islamic State group in Syria as the mastermind of the Paris capable of defeating the jihadists at home and abroad.

Addressing lawmakers after France observed a minute of silence honoring the 120 people killed international community, led by the United States and Russia, must overcome their deep-seated divisions over Syria to destroy Islamic State on its home turf.

"Friday's acts of war were decided and planned in Syria. They were organized in Belgium and perpetrated on our Hollande told Parliament in a rare joint session convened at the Palace of Versailles.

"Syria has become the biggest factory of terrorism the world has ever known and the international community is still too divided and too incoherent."

As he spoke, thousands

the Sumter ITEM

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 17, 2015

Serving South Carolina since October 15, 1894

75 cents

A3

Haley announces
flood relief fund
to rebuild homes

Obama rejects calls for shift in ISIS fight

BY JULIE PACE
AP White House Correspondent

ANTALYA, Turkey — President Obama on Monday firmly rejected calls for a shift in U.S. strategy against the Islamic State after the Paris attacks, saying Republicans who want to send ground troops into the volatile region are "talking as if they're tough" but fail to understand the potentially grave consequences.

"Folks want to pop off and have opinions about what they think they would do," Obama said in a news conference wrapping up a two-day summit of world leaders in Turkey. "If they think that somehow their advisers are better than the chairman of Joint Chiefs of Staff and the folks who are actually on the ground, I want to meet them. And we can have that debate."

In a stinging rebuke, the president condemned Republicans who have suggested

U.S. assistance to refugees fleeing the Middle East should focus on Christians, not Muslims. GOP presidential candidates Jeb Bush and Ted Cruz have made such suggestions.

SEE ATTACKS, PAGE A8

PHOTO BY KEITH SENJWY / THE SUMTER ITEM

Marchers in the Walk Against Domestic Violence are seen on the Sumter County Courthouse steps Saturday morning after the walk which was organized by the Sumter High School International Baccalaureate program. The group collected household items for and donated money to the Sumter YWCA.

SHS students host 9th walk against domestic violence

BY ADRIENNE SARVIS
adrienne@item.com

Sumter High School's International Baccalaureate program hosted its ninth Walk Against Domestic Violence on Saturday to raise awareness about an issue that has put South Carolina at the top of one of the most unfortunate lists.

Before the walk began, the IB program students presented YWCA, an organization that provides support services to victims of domestic violence, with a check for $200.

Susan Hilton, the IB creativity activity service supervisor, said the students raised the money by selling shirts they created for the event and cause.

She said the walk was started by a former SHS student, 2008 graduate Walkers in Sumter High School's International Baccalaureate program's Walk Against Domestic Violence will Main Street on Saturday morning as they walk to raise awareness on the subject. The proceeds from the walk were donated to the Sumter YWCA.

SEE WALK, PAGE A8

National radio host, author to speak at Wilson Hall

SPORTS Clemson QB Watson a Heisman hopeful in year of the RB. Page 1B

Morning News

TUESDAY NOVEMBER 17, 2015

TODAY'S WEATHER
Partly sunny and nice.
High 73, low 52.
DETAILS 2A

The Voice of the Pee Dee

75 cents

Operation Christmas Child collection week underway

From left, Ethan Pettigrew, Alex Greer and Abby Reeves of Ebenezer Baptist Church in Florence help pack gift-filled shoeboxes Monday at Calvary Baptist Church. Calvary Baptist Church is a collection center for Operation Christmas Child.

BY SHAMIRA MCGRAY
Morning News
shamira.mcgray@FlorenceNews.com

FLORENCE — Children in third-world countries who will receive gift-filled shoeboxes this year will not only receive presents but a chance to know Jesus through Operation Christmas Child.

Each year the Christian relief organization spearheads a project to collect gift-filled shoeboxes and delivers them to children living in desperate situations. This is all done in the name of Jesus.

Sites such as Calvary Baptist Church in Florence collect packed boxes from churches, schools and individuals in the Pee Dee area, then send them to Charlotte where they are sorted and sent to children in need.

"When you pack a shoebox, you're delivering a box of simple gifts to a child in a third world country, a child who may have never received a gift in their life," said Pam Smith, Operation Christmas Child Church Relations coordinator for the Pee Dee.

Smith said she has heard stories of children who have received items such as toothpaste in their box and have shared it with their entire neighborhood. Some children receive school supplies in their boxes that then give them an opportunity to go to school, since they wouldn't be able to otherwise.

"You get to bless a child with a box of simple gifts, but then on top of that, every single child that receives a box is given the opportunity to attend a discipleship class called 'The Greatest Journey,'" Smith said.

Children are invited to attend the class at a local church or arena in their county and get to learn about Jesus and to know him as their personal savior.

"When they finish the class, they actually have a graduation ceremony where they would have yellow caps and gowns and the whole nine yards," said Louanne Stewart, the Calvary collection center coordinator.

Stewart said one shoebox not only touches the child

See CHILD, Page 3A

Gas tax backers face new $1.2B hurdle

BY CASIE CORE
The State
casie.core@latimes.com

COLUMBIA — Efforts to raise the state's gas tax to pay for road repairs suffered perhaps a fatal setback last week when South Carolina lawmakers found out they will have $1.2 billion in added money to spend next year.

Momentum to raise the tax had been building since early October, when more than 2 feet of rain drenched portions of the state, washing out and damaging 541 roads and bridges.

However, the $1.2 billion added to the state's budget last week will fuel the arguments of conservative lawmakers who say the state's surpluses and growing revenues can pay for road repairs without a tax increase.

Advocates of a higher gas tax say it's not realistic to put all $1.2 billion toward the cost of road repairs. Other causes — Road damages, rural schools, the funding needs of state agencies cut during the Great Recession — will lay claim to some of that money, they say. And, they add, a one-time $1.2 billion windfall will not address the state's long-term road needs — estimated to cost up to an added $1.5 billion a year for the next 30 years.

To get a long-term road repair solution, lawmakers will have to strike a deal on three issues — raising the state's gas tax, cutting its income tax rates and reforming the state Transportation Department.

"It's going to be difficult, but I don't think it's impossible," said state Sen. Shane Mossey, R-Edgefield. But to make a deal, many law-

HOOPING IT UP

Eli Seil, 5, gets some after-school exercise at Montessori School of Florence. The West Palmetto Street school has students from 2 years old to sixth grade.

Missy Hodges, 9 (left), and Jordan McKnight, 7, have some fun with Hula-Hoops on Monday at Montessori School of Florence during their after-school care program.

A beautiful fall afternoon offered a nice opportunity for Montessori School of Florence students to play outside Monday before they were picked up from their after-school program.

Financial firm giving back to Florence

Day of Thanks to feed the homeless and those in need

BY JIM PERRY
Morning News
jerry.Morninnews.com

ut Thanks the day before Thanksgiving.

Florence has been good

Butler committed to South Dainger Street's Walkers Building about 3%

Brian Symmes
Cell: 803-673-9437
Office: 803-734-0304