Subject: POLITICO Speaking Invitation for Governor Nikki Haley

Dear Chaney,

On behalf of POLITICO, we would like to invite Governor Haley to be a headline speaker at an upcoming special edition of POLITICO's popular Playbook event series taking place at the POLITICO Hub in Washington D.C. during the 2017 Presidential Inauguration.

In conjunction with POLITICO's Inauguration programming, Playbook Co-Authors Anna Palmer and Jake Sherman will convene a conversation to discuss news of the day and the future of policy and politics in the new administration. As Ambassador-designate to the United Nations and an influential voice in the Republican Party our editorial team thinks Governor Haley will bring an important perspective to the conversation and would be delighted to host her as a keynote speaker for this event.

General event details are below and our formal invitation is attached:

- Format: This Playbook event will be a two-on-one discussion led by POLITICO's Playbook Co-Authors Anna Palmer and Jake Sherman. The program will be entirely conversational — no speeches, slides or presentations are necessary for participation.
- Audience: We expect approximately 100 senior-level professionals, business-leaders, entrepreneurs, academics, and government staff to attend.
- Press: Like all POLITICO events this event will be on the record, open to the press, streamed live on POLITICO.com and made available to the more than 13 million unique visitors the site receives each month.
- Location and time: The program will be held at the POLITICO Hub at the W Hotel 515 15th St. NW in Washington D.C. the morning of on January 20th. We can be flexible on exact event timing to accommodate her busy schedule.

We hope Governor Haley will consider joining us for what promises to be an engaging and important conversation. Please feel free to let me know if you have any questions and we look forward to hearing from you.

Best,

Kelsey
