Subject: Official inquiry following plutonium arrival

Chaney,

I sent you an informal email yesterday but wanted to follow with more official questions today. I am working on a deadline at 2 pm today and any information, as always, will be greatly appreciated.

1. Does Governor Haley have a general reaction to the additional plutonium being brought into the state despite her official objections in the letter to Secretary Moniz asking him to divert the shipment?
2. Did the DOE notify the Governor's office of the incoming shipment as it arrived or before its being unloaded in South Carolina?
3. Will this impact the state's approach to the MOX lawsuit?
4. Does the Governor feel like the state has the power to negotiate with the DOE or federal government for its well-being?
5. Will the state take any action to try and speed up processing and/or removal of this and other radioactive material from the state?

Thanks, Chaney.
