Just got off the phone with Annie Donovan at OMB. They are doing a pay-for-success meeting on July 8th. Megan and I will present a short 5 minute TED style talk. They have confirmed Lloyd Blankfein from Goldman as the keynote and were wondering if Gov. Haley would be interested in being the other keynote with him. What do you think? Is it worth pursuing? Or too much of a political football for her? I don't want to hurt her by too much association with the administration. But, it is also Blankfein!

Thanks-
