Linda Williams Hicks I grew up in Houston and in summer of 68 my folks and I drove to FL and they told me they'd stop at anything historical I wanted to see. We toured probably 6-9 plantations, old cemeteries, churches, cities, and this is so very different than when we were there. The ladies who were docents in their beautiful dresses talked about the owners and occupants of the houses but only a couple of plantations had any sign of slave quarters still standing. Thank you for offering this - I live in CO now and chances of visiting these places are slim.
