

From: Conservative Intel <email@conservativeintel.com>
To: Veldran, KatherineKatherineVeldran@gov.sc.gov
Date: 11/17/2014 9:04:57 AM
Subject: Senate 2016: A tough map for GOP

A Very Tough Map for GOP Senate in 2016

FROM: DAVID FREDDOSO

Republicans need a plan for 2015 -- and quick. A first look at the 2016 cycle, which promises to be a brutal one for Republicans, and how they can hold the U.S. Senate.

Also: More observations about the 2014 vote; Louisiana prepares for its December 6 Senate runoff, expected to give Republicans their ninth overall Senate gain for 2014.

The Michigan
Governor and Senate races: Why the difference in votes?

FROM: J. CAL DAVENPORT

Conservative and Republicans have stopped simply celebrating the sweeping success of this year's election and have begun to look to see what can be learned. One disparity that stands out is the difference in a couple of statewide races in my home state of Michigan.

Will A Carson Campaign Be Taken Seriously?

FROM: CONSERVATIVE INTEL

Those tempted to discount the near-official candidacy of Ben Carson may rethink whether the surgeon-turned-politico will make a serious splash in the 2016 bid for the White House.

If You're Not Outraged, You're Not Paying Attention!

Are you outraged at today's politics? Show it with a t-shirt from the Conservative Intel Store!

Home | Polling | Store | Issue Watch | Elections

COPYRIGHT © 2014 CONSERVATIVE INTELLIGENCE BRIEFING

This message was intended for: katherineveldran@gov.sc.gov
Update Your Subscription | 8 | Unsubscribe