I thought that South Carolina had turned the corner by electing the first woman as governor, a woman of Indian decent, but when a woman puts on the Republican hat she is just another "red neck." The Republican Party is not a woman's party, it's not a people party, it's not a worker's party. Businesses are not the job creators. The consumer is the real "job creators," because if the consumer can't afford to buy the businesses' product, it will go "belly up." Gov. Haley as a woman is a big disappointment. A woman can be as good as the best or as bad as the worst. South Carolina deserves better. Which will it be?
