Description/Significant Features:

The one-story residence exemplifies the Ranch style popular during the mid-twentieth century. The hipped-roof building features deep overhanging eaves and is clad in brick veneer. Original one-over-one sash are found on all of the building's elevation. A centrally located door punctuates the facade and holds a replacement door which is approached by a brick stoop (likely a later addition). From the center ridge line rises an interior brick chimney. The building is plain in design.

Alterations (include date(s), if known):

replacement door (late-twentieth-century)
likely addition of front stoop
