Subject: State agency fees and fines

Hi Doug,

I'm working on a story today about the fact that a lot of state agencies have not posted online, as required by law, all the fines and fees they collected and spent last year.

It says they must post that info online by September 1st, but there's no enforcement mechanism or consequence if they don't.

I'm trying to figure out who I should talk to on camera about this. Obviously, I'm going to try to talk to some of the agencies that have not posted like they're supposed to. But I'm wondering if the governor has any thoughts or comments about why agencies should do this (the proviso says to promote accountability and transparency), and what she thinks about the fact that most are NOT doing it, and what should be done about not following the law.

Thanks,

Robert
