South Carolina State Parks

at 23:50:00 on 5/17/2011 UTC ·

OK park people, I have a challenge for YOU! As I travel the state and talk to people about state parks, a lot of folks tell me they don't visit their state parks, or they don't even know about them. My challenge to you is tomorrow tell at least ONE person about our great state parks and ask them to visit our website or LIKE us on facebook. Can you do it?

Katherine M. Long I just sang SC State Park praises today! Does that count??

Sharon Buchholz I stayed at Barnwell State Park last week in a cabin - had such a relaxing stay. These cabins are way more than expected. This is the most peaceful State Park I have ever stayed at. I have been telling everyone I know about it! Hunting Island is my favorite though, but the cabins are usually booked by the time I reserve one.

Belle Boone I always sing the praises of the state parks. I have been to almost half of them so far. I am amazed when I meet people who live just miles from HBSP yet have never been there. I was there today and wondered if there is such a thing as a gift day pass I could give to people.

Pauline Taylor I have told everyone...the beach is beautiful

Shirley M. Purcell That's hard to believe - that so many people don't know the state parks exist. Where have they been? A family could enjoy a very inexpensive vacation, by taking a series of day trips to a different state park each time - from the mountains to the sea.

Shelby Gable Vargo HaHa! I do that frequently and in fact just today was telling someone how nice it is at Edisto Beach State Park!

at 1:30:41 on 5/18/2011 UTC

Rachel Power Don't visit their state parks??? WOW, I live in Vermont & make time to visit SC state parks at least once a year! ! Your state parks are some of the most lovely, friendly, and relaxing places I know of... keep up the fantastic work. Edisto Beach, true love.
