South Carolina has enjoyed many months of an increasing employment rate; however, the challenge for industry is that as more and more people go back to work, employers have an increasingly harder time finding the right skills and talent for available jobs. Join South Carolina leaders and other businesses on Feb. 8 for the annual Workforce Development Symposium in Columbia to learn more about initiatives to impact the workforce pipeline, and explore systemic workforce problems and the actions currently underway to address those issues. The Workforce Development Symposium is hosted by the S.C. Chamber, the State Workforce Development Board and the S.C. Department of Employment and Workforce.
