Consider these FUN-filled possibilities. Why Newberry? Simply put, it's a little, accessible gem that's Southern to its core, and we mean that in a good way. Drive to Newberry on I-26.

It's about 45 minutes west of Columbia, and about an hour east of Greenville. Once you arrive, choose your accommodation. We suggest the Hampton Inn Newberry-Opera House. It's downtown, in the middle of the action, and frequently offers packages to entice visitors to enjoy the many charms of this remarkable town. Safely

Where in the Carolina World are You?

Who knew there were so many excellent wineries in North Carolina? Head for this valley and sample to your heart's content (with a designated driver, of course). Try to find time to stop here, where their wine has been enjoyed by White House guests, and the owners devote plenty of time and resources to helping homeless creatures. Where are you?

Carolina Grown

Delicate and Beautiful

by Robert F. Polomski, Ph.D.
Horticulturist/Lecturer • Clemson University

Southern magnolia (Magnolia grandiflora) is a native southern aristocrat that has become a blooming sensation over the past 30 years. The large 8-12 inch wide fragrant flowers appear in May and early June. Although they open sporadically and are often scattered haphazardly throughout the canopy, I've learned to appreciate each individual flower's character and fragrance. I find the leaves to be attractive as well. The dark green, waxy leaves have the feel of plastic. The undersides of the leaves of the species are green, but some cultivars flaunt fuzzy, felt-like brown lower leaf surfaces.

Left to its own devices, a southern magnolia can attain gargantuan proportions, typically 60 to 80 ft. high and 30 to 50 ft. wide. However, with the introduction and availability of cultivars that come in a variety of habits, sizes, and leaf shapes, southern magnolia can fit quite easily into smaller landscapes. Use the heat- and drought-tolerant cultivars as accents, or plant them in groups, hedges, or large screens.

Several exceptional cultivars for the Carolinas include 'Bracken's Brown Beauty,' 'Claudia Wannamaker,' 'D.D. Blanchard,' 'Hasse,' 'Kay Parris,' 'Little Gem,' 'Mgtig' (Greenback®), 'Southern Charm' (Teddy Bear®), and 'TMGH' (Alta®).*

Names in parentheses are the commercially acceptable trade names for the true names of the plants listed before them.*

Note: Magnolia grandiflora 'Kay Parris' is an upright, columnar southern magnolia that bears six-inch wide fragrant flowers and grows up to 25-30 ft. tall and 10-12 ft. wide after 15 years. Introduced by Kevin Parris in 1993, it is believed to be the result of a cross between M.g. 'Little Gem' and 'M.g. 'Bracken's Brown Beauty.'

The Outdoor Issue

Hello Tony,

Summertime graces the Carolinas with blooming gardenias and magnolias that fill gardens with delicious aromas. Farmers Markets are lush with local produce, super fresh eggs and seafood. We now abandon the gym for the great outdoors: bike trails (we've been pedaling great trails), cool mountain hikes, challenging golf, swimmin' holes and Atlantic beaches.

With the hundredth anniversary of the birth of our National Parks just past, we invite you to enjoy Lassoing the Sun, a book that really tells a life-changing story. Then, plan to visit the National Parks in the Carolinas – more than a dozen strong. (Info, right.)

There are "beautiful places" at every turn. Witness the "smiling faces" DNA woven into the more relaxed Carolina culture. We love being in the midst of mountain drama views, or anywhere that gives us quality outdoor time.

Tony, thanks for sending your ideas as we continue to share with you the best of the Carolinas. Enjoy!

Our National Treasures

Note: There are more than a dozen national parks and sites in the Carolinas. Visit them all, but before you go, read this inspiring book by one man who spent a year traveling.

Mark Woods shares his account of his incredible, year-long journey visiting America's National Parks. In 2011, Woods won the Eugene C. Pulliam Fellowship, a $75,000 award given annually to one writer in the country with a proposal to spend one year in America's national parks, looking ahead to the centennial and beyond. In 2012, he visited one park a month, starting with a sunrise in Acadia and ending with a sunset in Haleakala.

What was intended to be a book about the future of the national parks turned into something much bigger. Lassoing The Sun is more than just a memoir – it is a book about family, the parks, the legacies we inherit, and the ones we leave behind. With the backdrop of America's parks, Woods has given readers an immensely profound story about life and what it truly means to be alive.

"The guy is so good. And he has such a fresh way of looking at things. I was just thrilled by the way he plans to move the discussion forward." —Jim Dwyer, Pulitzer Prize winner

Guests at High Hampton Inn may have a chance to glimpse stars on location at this recreation of "Kellerman's Resort." The ABC Television Production stars Debra Messing as the mom, Abigail Breslin as Baby, Sarah Hyland as Baby's sister Lisa, and Colt Prattes as Johnny.

Nestled in the foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains, High Hampton Inn in Cashiers, North Carolina, was chosen as the location for the filming of the television series "Dirty Dancing."

The Inn, listed on the National Register of Historic Places, has been in full preparation mode this spring to recreate the iconic places from the 1963 movie that was filmed in the Catskills.

Stepping onto the property is like a trip back in time, but with all the modern conveniences. High Hampton Inn embodies the spirit of the picturesque mountains surrounding it; each of the Inn's 116 rooms features rustic décor that captures the essence of a time gone by and transports guests to a simpler time. Don't expect televisions in your room, because the show is outside with activities from tennis to hiking.
