Description /Significant Features:

Circa 1960 vacant warehouse located at 812 Russell Street. It used to house Red Hat Feeds and signage for the company still remains. The resource is rectangular in plan and is one story tall with a front gabled V-crimp metal roof. It is clad in Vcrimp metal siding. The foundation is a combination of concrete block piers, continuous brick, and continuous concrete block. The south end of the building is largely intact, with a metal door and louvered metal windows in the gable end. The long east and west side elevations contain fenestration for doors and windows which are missing. The north end of the building has sustained fire damage and is open to the elements. It appears that the roofline extended to create a frontgabled porch at this end of the building prior to the fire.

Alterations (including date(s), if known):

Fenestration removed
