South Carolina State Parks

Ranger Dawn & her park, Musgrove Mill, are at it again! Look what she captured a picture of today -- hair ice! This is due to the recent cold morning temps and moisture. This frost occurrence happens during humid winter nights when the temperature drops just below the freezing point. The textures and forms are a result of the fungus Exidiopsis effusa. Thanks to Ranger Dawn for capturing a photo of the hair ice again this morning! Keep your eyes open in your area for it!
