Cabins and campgrounds are open in state parks; however, no new cabin or camping reservations will be accepted with arrival dates between now and May 7, 2020. Reservations already made between now and May 7 are being honored at this time. To minimize contact, visitors are encouraged to pay balances for cabins or campsites by using the website or by calling the call center (1-866-345-7275) or calling the park office. If you have a reservation please check your email for instructions on how to check in.

Jane Ochsenbein Amanda Wilson No, it isn't. Everything you touch along the way could be transmitting this without you ever getting sick. How many stops did you make between home and here? The local hospitals are hitting overload. My friend is an ER nurse that is on day 12 of his disposable mask. I own a local business, many of us have chosen to close and are staying home to flatten the curve and save our healthcare workers. This isn't the time to make excuses about vacations.

Amanda Wilson Jane Ochsenbein Well first of all, where I camp requires NO STOPS along the way...so before you get on your high horse with your "my friend is an ER nurse" crap, know your audience. Obviously, you don't camp or you would understand we will be quarantining ourselves just with a better view. So please, don't lecture me. I have a science degree and am not an idiot.

Donald Nathan Hale Jane Ochsenbein and everything you touch along the way during a normal flu season that kills between 20 and 80 THOUSAND people EVERY SINGLE YEAR could be transmitting a virus. Are you going to be this wound up by the media next flu season?

And your video about flushable wipes is from 2016. Just thought you should know.

at 1:54:26 on 3/25/2020 UTC

Donald Nathan Hale Ashley Evans and he chose that profession, and I thank him for that. When I went into respiratory distress from an aspirin, my ER nurse (a male by the way) was a godsend. But are you this wound up during the flu season, or is it because you're TV is telling you to be? I'm asking a serious question with all due respect.

Mina Harrington This is confusing. You say no new cabin OR CAMPING reservations will be accepted with arrival dates between now and May 7. Yet, on your web page it says only that no new cabin reservations will be accepted. So, which is it?

at 2:03:49 on 3/25/2020 UTC

Amanda Wilson Folks, I am by no means downplaying the seriousness of this virus. Myself and my kids are hold up at the house and I go out when needed. My hubs still has to work. But to attack the general public as if we are all stupid is not cool. That was my argument. Sure, they're are people who should be staying home but instead are viewing this as spring break, but we are not those people and frankly I don't appreciate the insinuation. Treating people as if you know all and everyone else is stupid seldom leads to constructive conversations.

at 2:04:59 on 3/25/2020 UTC

Blake Weathers State park web site says cabins only and will still let you make camping reservations please get together on this , don't make it one way here and different on the web page which I trust and check more often

Ashley Evans Donald Nathan Hale Because someone chose a career, doesn't give the population the right to act selfishly and irresponsibly. Otherwise, why don't we just allow Police Officers to walk into hostile situations without leaded vests (because healthcare workers are dealing with Covid-19 Patients without PPE.)
The SIMPLE fact that Hospitals do NOT have the supplies they need, should be enough for everyone to just stay home- except for ESSENTIAL movement outside the home- just at the President has asked.

From a biological and Epidemiological standpoint this is nothing like the flu for a variety of reasons, that if you like, I can detail, but the fact that there is no vaccine or immunity, and it attacks the lungs from an overall prospective and not just a part of the lung (with typical virus induced pneumonia) should be enough to differentiate the two.

Otherwise....here is what I know during the flu seasons.

1) Upstate, SC Hospitals do NOT enough beds at peak of flu (this was just detailed this Fall by Greenville News)

2) ER Nurses work large loads of overtime to deal with the influx from the flu...a disease WITH part of the population vaccinated.

I'm not a sheep that watches the news and holds onto soundbytes similar to "it's like the flu." Finally...a study was just released of 15 exposed Asymptomatic Healthcare Workers. All 15 had their lungs scanned. 14. Yes!!!! 14 tested positive and had detrimental changes to their lungs - yet they showed zero symptoms.

So for every person passing their debit card to the Park attendant. Every bath house that's opened. The gas handles you touch to fill up your RV for "vacation." The gas station you go into and buy snacks. Or the extra Grocery Store trip you take for camping supplies. It's ALL connected. And prolongs this for everyone.

They need somewhere to park because many private campgrounds are closed and places like walmart that may allow them to park overnight are being used for virus testing. Many rest areas are closed as well, so there is no safe place to park. SC is lucky that state parks are still allowing camping.

Jane Ochsenbein Xiamaris CiCi Sellner I own an outdoor company and we closed to help flatten the curve. This virus can live on surfaces for days and is easily transmitted by people moving around. The woods may be safer for you, but how many people could you infect traveling there? People from high risk areas that have a heavy saturation are jumping in their cars & RV's to escape their shelter in place orders, driving hundreds of miles, stopping at gas stations & stores along the way, disbursing viral contamination the entire trip. Our hospitals are asking for seamstresses to help sew elastic bands on the expired masks that were delivered to the by the Feds. This isn't about individual safety, it's about preventing the spread so our hospitals are safe for everyone.

Dawn M. Addison Camping is the one activity where you can go out into the woods and not see anyone and where you can be totally self reliant. Folks with campers have their own kitchen and bathrooms. Those with tents bring their cooking equipment and can use portable bring along toilets. We camp to get away from people. Beats being stuck in the house watching TV for hours on end.

at 19:27:11 on 3/25/2020 UTC

Rene Broaddus I just cancelled all my tent site reservations, because sharing restroom facilities for a weekend didn't seem like a good idea. Kept one cabin reservation and one primitive site reservation, but other than those I will just be doing day trip paddles. LOTS of day trip paddles!
