Dear Members of the Children of the Confederacy:

I would like to commend you all on your dedication to Veterans, history, and community service. I am heartened to know that you are participating in an organization that will bolster your civic participation. I hope that you enjoy your time together at the Children of the Confederacy Convention. This is an excellent time to come together to learn about history and work hard to accomplish your goals.

I think it is important to acknowledge the courage needed to be a leader. You are all leaders by virtue of actively seeking knowledge and community service, these are goals that benefit society without a tangible reward to the seeker; by these actions you demonstrate your courageousness. I would also like to applaud those that are leaders amongst leaders who are with you today and facilitating this event, Chandler Tucker, President of the Children of the Confederacy; Ann Sugary, President of the South Carolina Division United Daughters of the Confederacy; and Judy McCardle, Third Vice President of the South Carolina Division United Daughters of the Confederacy.

Best wishes and keep heart in all your endeavors and for your future success.

With warmest regards,

Sincerely,
