South Carolina State Parks

Of course it's a good morning at Goodale State Park! Located near Camden, this park has one of the best canoe/kayak trails in the state! It's a 3-mile trail that takes you on the park lake and Pine Tree Creek. For more info: <http://www.southcarolinaparks.com/goodale/introduction.aspx>

Bryn Harmer One of my favorite places to kayak!

Kristi Driggers Just went to the website and was ready to pack up the kayak until I clicked on the "unique features" tab and saw the alligator...oh hell to the naw.

Matthew Lattè Latta Kristi, alligators are very much afraid of humans, unless you do something to upset them... I paddled several waterways that are home to many alligators... As soon as they spot a human, they jump in the water and swim the other direction...

Alecia Lyle Ashe We kayaked here a few weeks ago. Beautiful!!! And we didn't see a single alligator. :(

Boyce Rampey Reminds me of lake Marion. Dad used to say it was his Saturday morning Cathedral.

Mike Ross Paddled there a couple weeks ago. Awesome place to paddle and something different than the places in the upstate that I go to. Saw one gator a little over a mile in. It didn't do anything but watch me go by. Talked to a DNR officer when I got done and he said as long as you don't feed him, he won't bother you.

Tim Glenn Great place to paddle, don't worry about the gators I don't know one paddler who had a problem with them..

Meg Beck Sprouse And alligators. It has alligators!!

at 12:42:11 on 9/12/2012 UTC

Becky Brown Smith Wonder what happens if you accidentally tip over?

at 14:24:30 on 9/12/2012 UTC

Jay Clingman One of the best kept secrets in state parks.

at 14:35:39 on 9/12/2012 UTC

Jay Clingman @Tim Glenn, Well now, you wouldn't hear much from the ones who DID have problems with the gators, would you? :-)

at 14:37:40 on 9/12/2012 UTC

Tim Jordan Live next door to it.full of gators one is huge it has to be 14-15ft long
